Farmer Overcomes Fear Of Government To Battle Manure Problems

FAYETTEVILLE (Franklin Co.) — For years, Evan Burkholder lived in fear — afraid of the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) and other government agencies finding out that he had severe problems on the farm.

But for a number of years, while trying to pay off huge farm debts in light of his father's paralyzing stroke, Burkholder could do little.

While the costs of farming went up, the problems with a manure storage pad increased. The flat pad only held so much. What it didn't hold during rainfall washed away easily into a nearby stream. The pad pushoff, inclined upward to help keep the moisture off, allowed contaminated water to flow down the slope directly into the stream.

In heavy rains, it got messy.

Chinese Admire Lancaster County Farms

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A Chinese entourage toured an Ephrata farm this week to learn more about composting, maintaining water quality, and making use of waste products.

To the tour group's delight, they also got to sniff the aroma of some freshly burning tobacco and gulp down watermelon and tomatoes picked fresh off the vine.

The group, considered smoking connoisseurs, admired the fine quality of tobacco grown by Aaron and Clark Stauffer, who said that much of their crop is shipped to China.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— The junior beef show, always a highlight of KILE, was held Sunday afternoon in the small arena of the farm show building. When the selection of division champions was complete, judge Lynn Holley, Bowling Green, OH slapped the two heavyweight champions for his grand and reserve of the show.

Jonathan Lori, Scottdale, Westmoreland County, had the grand champion with his 1270 lb. Limousin and Ryan Luellen, Mooreland, Indiana had the reserve champion with his 1305 lb. Angus-Maine crossbred.

In the lightweight classes, Chrissy Daniels, Connersville, IN, had the champion with a Hereford and Lewis Moore, Osterburg, Bedford County, had the reserve champion with a crossbred.

Heather Fuls had the champion middleweight and Justin Fuls had the reserve middleweigth champions, Both youths are from Berlin in Somerset County and they showed Chiania-Maine-Anjou-Angus crossbreds.

The top placings in the six classes are as follows:

JUNIOR BEEF STEERS

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — The 138th annual Bloomsburg Fair livestock shows featured a Jersey as the supreme dairy champion, a Lamancha goat who attained permanent champion status, and a 4-H Livestock Sale which netted $19,663. Drawing visitors (a record 670,000 for the week) and exhibitors from all over the state, the fair was held last week.

Mildred Seeds of Downingtown won supreme champion of five breed champions with Top-O-Hill Admiral Tina, a four year old Jersey. Judge Paul Knight, York, felt Tina had more dairyness than the recently fresh Holstein champ-

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS. FEDERAL-STATE Trucklot buying interest was good on all items in the parts complex.

Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were balanced with immediate needs but short of an active demand going into late week. Where available supplies are held with confidence. Line run breasts were adequate for current needs but asking prices and reported trades trended higher. Leg quarters and thighs were barely adequate for an active retail demand and cleared well at today's prices. Yellow skin wings were balanced with a good and improving retail demand.

PERFORMANCE TOP DRESS

Advantage is a new line of high performance dairy feeds from Pennfield. It contains select sources of high quality blood meal and fish meal. Blood meal is an excellent by-pass source of the amino acid Lysine. Fish meal, an excellent source of by-pass protein, has also been shown to increase rumen bacterial protein synthesis — Rumen bugs work harder.

Combine these features with the steam crimped soybeans, steam flaked corn, balanced proteins and carbohydrates, plus vitamins and minerals and you have Pennfield's new Advantage Feed Line. Advantage Feeds are availablein any protein % from 14% to 36%.

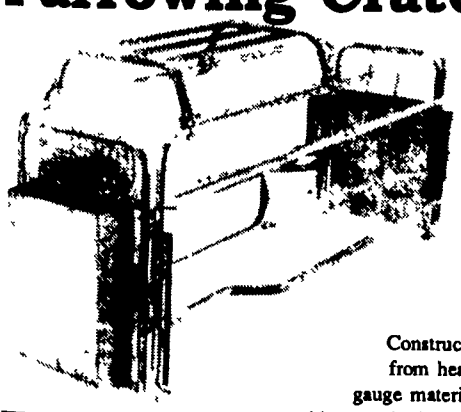
PREVENT PIGLET CRUSHING

BSM Model 90 Farrowing Crate



GALVANIZED!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping in the piglets.
This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

OCTOBER 12-18, 1992

NATIONAL GROUCH DAY, OCTOBER 15.

THE PRESIDENT'S HOUSE

The cornerstone was laid October 13, 1792 (200 years ago), for the President's House James Hoban, an Irish-American, won the contest and the $500 prize money for best design and beat Thomas Jefferson, who also had submitted a drawing The pale gray limestone cornerstone from a quarry in Virginia was laid and the President's House became the oldest federal building in Washington President and Mrs John Adams were the first occupants of the three story mansion in November of 1800 By 1809 the President's House was called the White House because its whitish limestone walls contrasted with the redbrick buildings around it In 1818 the House was painted white and officially became known as the White House

An old broom knows the dirty corners best.

– Irish Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To remove crayon marks from painted walls scrub with a dab of toothpaste.

EARTHWISE

Oscar the Grouch lives in a trash can, but that's not the best place for your aluminum cans Only half of America's aluminum beverage cans are recycled, while the other 50% are wasted Making cans from recycled aluminum uses 90% less energy, 95% less raw materials, and cuts related air pollution by 95% If you're already recycling at home, try to get local restaurants and gas stations to recycle too Every place that sells or uses aluminum cans should have a bin for recycling them

OPINION

Beware Of Deadly Silo Gases

Did you ever consider a silo full of freshly chopped corn silage as a potential death trap?

Jennie Hess Brown, York Extension agent says complex chemcial reactions involved in the formation of silage give off lethal nitrogen gases and carbon dioxide. The nitrogen gases (predominantly nitrogen dioxide) present the greatest threat in and around upright silos. No one ever should enter an oxygen-limiting silo because there never is enough air to support life.

Avoid breathing silo gas. Two or three breaths of strong gas can permanently damage the lungs. Staying in the gas may seem okay because you lose the smell. Several hours may pass before serious problems occur.

Silo gas has a disagreeable odor which has been described by some as being bleach-like. The color may range from red through orange to dark brown. Silo gas is heavier than air so it will settle to the lowest area. It will settle on top of the silage or drain down into the silo room if silo doors are open. In the silo room or barn, it becomes a hazard to both man and beast.

Follow the precautions: stay out of the silo for at least two weeks after filling, if at all possible. If you must enter to level out the silage, do it immediately after filling and leave the blower running while you are there. Keep the doors between the silo room and the main barn closed, but open all windows and exterior doors of the silo room to allow fresh air to enter. If you experience any coughing or throat irritation in the silo, get out immediately and seek medical attention.

If a person becomes disabled in the silo and you suspect silo gas - do not enter the silo -- call emergency medical personnel at once and start the blower if it is still at the silo. The life you save may be your own or the life of a family member.

Editor:

Dr. Benjamin Spock sold out the welfare of the American children to a miniority group known as "The Coalition to Eliminate Animal Agriculture". The group is quite obviously sponsoring this most recent milk scare. This is evident when one reads the front page of September 30th Reading Times, and I quote: "Spock made his remarks prior to an appearance before a meeting in Boston of the Physicians' Committee for Responsible Medicine, a group that promotes preventive medicine and alternatives to medical research on animals". It's a stretch to suggest that this has anything to do with our children drinking milk.

What should truly concern all of us is the news media's obvious attempt to sensationalize this,

NOW IS THE TIME

To Protect Stored Corn From Insects

Corn harvesting time is fast approaching.

As the grain goes into storage, one of our concerns is to protect it from insect damage.

There are two major insects to be concerned about. One is the foreign grain beetle. It does not feed on the grain but on fungi and molds. These beetles are more of a problem when corn is stored wet, poorly aerated, and not cooled down.

The other insect, the Indian Meal Moth, feeds on corn. It webs corn together with fine silken threads.

To protect corn from these two insects, thoroughly clean the storage facilities and areas around them. Also, clean augers and harvesting equipment. Then spray all surfaces with an insecticide to kill any lingering pests.

Be sure the corn is clean and dry before going into storage. Then aerate it well and drop the temperature to about 40 degrees.

Spraying the surface with an insecticide will provide additional protection. Make sure any pesticide you use is labeled for corn and follow all label instructions, especially holding times, before feeding to animals.

To Keep Maintenance Records

Keeping records is a necessity in any business.

Farming is no exception. Recordkeeping for the IRS is required. But keeping records of other things on the farm will help in making many management decisions.

Good records also help the farmer take better care of his equipment.

Dr. James Garth, Penn State agricultural engineer, said, "The owner's manual and a complete service log should be kept for each piece of equipment on the farm." The owner's manual tells us how often to change oil, lubricate moving parts, check belts for proper tension and wear, and how to make adjustments necessary for efficient operation.

The service log records tell us when things were done. This eliminates the need to guess when the equipment was last serviced or when repairs were made.

One of the major keys of profitability is longevity of equipment. The best way to extend the longevity of your equipment is to follow the instructions in the owner's guide and keep a service log.

To Understand Part Per Billion (PPB)

Today we have the ability to detect traces of materials or chemicals at the part per billion or part per trillion level.

This is an extremely small amount that until recently would go undetected.

The following example should help you better understand what a part per billion is. If one aspirin was dissolved in 96,000 gallons of water, you would have one part per billion. If you drank one gallon of water each day, it would take over 260 years to consume that one aspirin tablet.

At the one part per trillion level, you would have to dissolve one aspirin tablet in 96 million gallons and live over 260,000 years to consume that aspirin by drinking one gallon per day.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LOOKING ON THE HEART
October 11, 1992

Background Scripture:
1 Samuel 16:1-13;
2 Samuel 2:1-7: 5:1-5.
Devotional Reading:
1 Samuel 16:1-13.

King Saul was an impressive-looking man. He probably would have done well in politics today. He was tall and attractive and had the look of a leader. But, although Saul looked the part, the reality was that he was a failure as king of the twelve tribes. Eventually, God said to Samuel, the prophet, "I have rejected him from being king over Israel" (1 Sam. 16:1).

What was wrong with Saul? It was not that he did not have the gifts to be king. He was capable, but he was lacking in character. In his heart there was a void and all the talents he possessed and all his impressive physical features could not make up for it. Saul, the man who had been reluctant to be king, now wanted nothing else. His initial humility had quickly turned to selfish arrogance. He probably could have been a great king, but instead of using the royal power for the sake of the people, he hoarded it for himself.

So, now God comes to Samual, telling him that he is to anoint a new king over the twelve tribes. Of course, Saul is still king, so we can appreciate that Samual is fearful of Saul's wrath. God instructs him to carry out his commission secretly. Go to Bethlehem as if to perform a sacrifice and ask the locals to join with you. While doing this, God will reveal to you his choice as the new king.

DO YOU COME PEACEABLY?

The response of the elders of Bethlehem is interesting: "Go you come peaceably?", they ask Samuel. Apparently, Samuel's reputation as the prophet of God causes them to stand in awe. Wherever and whenever Samuel is doing the work of the Lord there is likely to be something disturbing going on — perhaps some change; that's always disturbing! Samuel's not the kind of man who comes to drop in for a cup of tea. What does he want with us?, they wonder.

It appears that the ensuing dialogue between God and Samuel is an inner dialogue and the Bethlehemites do not realize that a momentous process is taking place. They think it is all part of the ritual. Only Samuel is aware of what is happening. So, God can act mightily in our midst without our being aware of it. In reality this was an event that would change the whole course of Israel's history, but it was taking place at the level of a prayer-conversation in Samuel's mind. You and I may sometimes discount our silent prayer-conversations with the Lord, but Samuel did not.

JUST A YOUTH

When the sons of Jesse begin to pass before him, Samuel tries to determine which of these the Lord has chosen. And he decides as most of us would decide, by appearance. Eliab looked like the right man, but God said, "Do not look on his appearance or on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him" (16:7). This was also true of Abinadab and Shammah. This may have temporarily stumped Samuel, but then it occurs to him to ask Jesse: "Are all your sons here?" Well, said Jesse, "There remains yet the youngest, but behold, he is keeping the sheep" (16:11).

We can well understand why Jesse didn't think it important to present David to the prophet. After all, David was just a youth and the extent of his capabilities at present was tending sheep. That's the way it looked to Jesse and that is the way it would look to most of us. But the standards by which we choose our leaders must be somewhat less than satisfactory, if you consider some of the mistakes we have made over the centuries or if you consider some of the criteria by which some people will vote for the next President of the United States.

The problem, as God puts it to Samuel, is that "the Lord sees not as man sees; man looks on the outward appearance; but the Lord looks on the heart" (16:7). And it is what is in the heart that makes the difference!

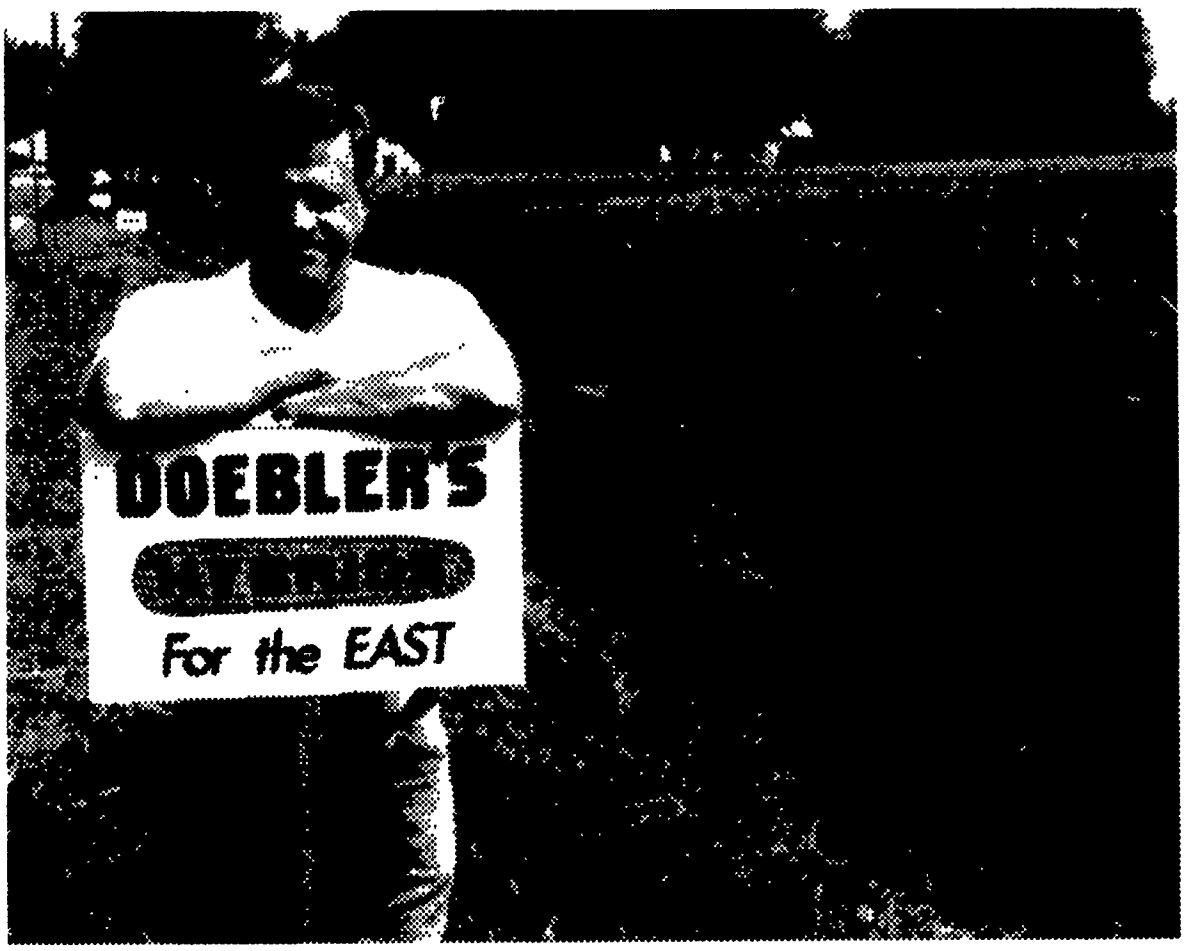
Doebler's hybrids at 1990 prices

NEW! NEW! WE GUARANTEE 80,000 KERNEL MINIMUM.

By Willard Jones



I'm Willard Jones, putting every Doebler hybrid in our fall sale. From our top selling 75X to brand new 27XP.

Our goal at Doebler's has always been to sell the best seed corn and alfalfa at fair prices.

And our Turn the Clock Back Sale this fall does just that, with every hybrid and alfalfa on sale.

But other good things are also happening at Doebler's these days.

1. Doebler's now guarantees a minimum of 80,000 kernels in every bag of single and three way crosses.

2. Doebler's also guarantees at least 56 pounds of seed corn in every bag.

If you're counting, that means you'll get more than 80,000 kernels in most grades. But you will absolutely never get less. Don't let a jealous seed corn salesman tell you different.

Pay cash on order, make 20% return

Ask your banker or accountant about Doebler's See D. It's an investment that works like this at our fall sale:

First save $2 per bushel of seed corn on sale discount.

Next, save up to $6 more per bag of seed corn and alfalfa by taking volume discount.

Now combine your seed corn and alfalfa orders and earn another 10% discount by paying cash this fall.

On a $2000 order, cash discount earns you $200 over six months. Or equivalent to 20% interest on a one-year CD.

Plant 100 acres, pay these prices

It takes 28 bushels of Doebler's medium flats to plant 100 acres. That's at 24,000 kernels per acre. Here's what you pay per bag:

Only $62.37
for 15 super singles like new 73XP and 45XP after discounts. Plateless, $61.02.

A low $57.87
for nine commercial singles after all discounts, including 86XA-2. Plateless, $56.52.

Still lower $53.37
for 75XMOD2 after discounts. Outtonned 75XMOD in our silage trials. Plateless, $52.02.

A bargain $48.87
for all three ways after discounts. Like hot 650A. Plateless, $45.72.

Save over $16 on alfalfa.
Regular price is $163.80. But you can do better. First, combine seed corn and alfalfa purchases to get best quantity discount.
Next take 10% cash discount. On a 30 bag order, that drops alfalfa price to $145.17.

Fixed competitive payments
Flexible payment schedules
Year-end tax planning
100% deductibility

Some people get all the breaks.

Put the breaks on your tax bill. Get your equipment with a true tax lease by December 31 and your payments are 100% tax-deductible as an operating expense. Plus, with an annual payment schedule, you can benefit from a large tax write-off this year and not make a second payment for as many as 12 full months.

You'll have several more good reasons to look forward to a happy new year. You can lock in your order now and take delivery in 1993. You'll enjoy fixed, competitive payments and can choose a payment schedule that allows you to skip payments in the months or season of lowest income. You also can get whatever you want right now without jeopardizing your ability to fully depreciate other assets bought earlier in the year.

Find out how lease financing can help you get all the year-end breaks you deserve. Contact your local Telmark representative today, or call 315-449-7964.

Your Farm Credit Banker. Nobody Knows The Field Better.

Sure, you'll find Farm Credit bankers all buttoned up, ready to talk short- or long-term loans, mortgages and sophisticated lines of credit.

But underneath the shirt and tie, you'll find the one thing the other banks don't offer. A fellow farmer.

Most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms and got their college degrees from ag schools. Nearly all of them grew up with 4-H and the Future Farmers of America.

And, if that's not enough, every single one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

That means when you talk to a Farm Credit loan officer about any kind of ag loan, you won't have to waste your time translating to someone who's book smart but farm foolish.

What's more, because Farm Credit loan officers understand farming as well as they understand finances, they're not only smarter, they're faster. After all, they have the same loan closing authority as many local bank presidents.

So when you need competitive rates or creative options, see your local Farm Credit banker. Because nobody knows the field better.

TWO DIFFERENT DAIRIES, ONE COMMON BELIEF:

BROWN'S

F.M. BROWN'S SONS, INC. CARES ABOUT THEIR HERD PERFORMANCE, NOT JUST THEIR ORDER

Rekua Dairy
Manheim, PA

In December 1990 when Rekua Dairy first bought their herd, the average was 19,500 lbs. By the time they made the switch to Brown's in April 1991, the average had dropped to 18,885 lbs. Twisted stomachs and breeding problems persisted. Questioning other area dairymen about where to go for help, F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc. was repeatedly mentioned. Since the switch to Brown's, twisted stomachs are no longer a problem, breeding is back on track and, most importantly, production started to climb. With a feeding program consisting of corn silage, haylage, pasture and Brown's 16 Hi Milker and 24 Amino Plus-C topdress, Rekua Dairy maintains a 49.5 lb. total DM intake.

DHIA ROLLING HERD AVERAGE

Sept. 1992	35 Cows	20,890 Milk	753 Fat	662 Protein	$1623	Income Over Feed Cost
April 1991	38 Cows	18,885 Milk	638 Fat	613 Protein	$1494	Income Over Feed Cost
		+2,005	+115	+49	+ $ 129

Ethtin Dairy
Manheim, PA

No. 8 is a 1st calf Pen-Col Abner daughter. Projected at 22,906 lbs. milk, she represents the quality in Ethtin's 31 cow herd. After having some production problems and not being able to make any improvements, the switch to Brown's was made. He found that an interest in the cows was shown, questions got answered, and a real knowledge of cows was shown by Brown's sales and nutrition staff. Cows like No. 8 show that paying attention to detail and an 80 lb. TMR have helped Ethtin Dairy back on the road to improved performance. A ration of corn silage. Brown's Flex-Formulated 40 Dairy with Morameal and a 24 Amino Plus-C topdress allows for a 48 lb. total DM intake.

DHIA ROLLING HERD AVERAGE

Aug. 1992	31 Cows	19,716 Milk	694 Fat	608 Protein	$1557	Income Over Feed Cost
Sept. 1991	29 Cows	19,155 Milk	628 Fat	595 Protein	$1299	Income Over Feed Cost
		+ 561	+ 66	+ 13	+$ 258

Rekua Dairy and Ethtin Dairy are pleased with the service provided by F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc. When asked how they've benefited from choosing Brown's, the response at both farms was that Brown's is concerned with their herd's performance. Dave McCracken, Brown's Area Director for the Manheim area, always checks the DHIA papers and herd performance on each visit. Also, both farms appreciate having a salesman there who is willing and able to answer any questions and help with problems that may occur.

Rekua Dairy and Ethtin Dairy are glad Brown's cares about their herds.
Let F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc. care for yours.

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — In his first year of showing, eight-year-old Ryan Donough had the surprise of his life at the Manheim Community Farm Show on Thursday night. His homebred crossbred topped 84 other sheep in breeding, market, and sale divisions to be named champion overall market lamb.

"I didn't think I had a better sheep than my brother," said Ryan whose 12-year-old brother Travis showed the champion heavyweight sale lamb, which was also named reserve champion sale lamb.

The brothers are the sons of Ed and Larue Donough of Manheim.

"If you won't buy one for you, buy one for your family."

"I thought I was a tough guy. And I'd been using PTO's for years. But I found out I was no match for an unprotected PTO. Sure, I suffered some, but I managed—my family suffered a lot more. Not only the doctor's bills, but caring for me through all the pain and hospital visits. Now, things I can't do with one arm have to be done by my wife or my kids. But there's no way I want to put them in the same danger I put myself in every day. Thankfully, at long last, somebody's designed a PTO guard that really guards."

Casey Says Thanks, Dad, For Help Raising A Manheim Steer Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Casey High said he owes a lot of thanks to his dad for helping select and raise a steer which became supreme champion Tuesday night at the Manheim Farm Show.

Oh, and Casey forgot to mention his dad's help in taking care of the steer all the times the six-year Beef Club 4-H'er had to go to football practice.

Casey, 14, son of Larry and Mae High, Lititz, showed the well-proportioned, heavily muscled steer "Charles," a 1,300-pound Maine Anjou/Angus cross, which also picked up supreme champion at the county roundup.

The Warwick H.S. 8th grader picked up Charles at the farm of Ron Rutan, Eaton, Ohio, a calf Casey said that instantly grabbed his attention because of the muscling and thickness early on.

According to Bob Mikesell, show judge, Casey's supreme Angus cross won out over a red steer because it simply had "more expression in the hind quarter than the red calf."

The reserve champion red calf, a 1,160-pound Maine Anjou/Angus cross named "Maverick," was shown by Travis Donough, last year's supreme champion. Travis, 12, son of Ed and Larue Donough, Manheim, said that feeding and walking went into the championship. The calf was purchased from Scott Hummel, Selinsgrove. The calf came in as first lightweight champion at the county roundup, said Travis, and as fifth in its class at the recent Keystone livestock expo.

In all, there were 15 steers and the same number of exhibitors at the show. Following is a list of show placings.

Farmers For Specter Committee Meets

CLARKS SUMMIT (Lackawanna Co.) — "Agriculture is the largest industry in Pennsylvania and I have worked diligently to be responsive to its needs," said U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter (R) at a visit to the Pallman Farm here to organize a "Farmers for Specter" committee for reelection.

Specter was on hand to ask questions about his campaign platform.

Bob Lange, chairman of Farmers for Specter, asked the U.S. senator about efforts to pass the farm transfer bill. "There is very little incentive under current law to be able to pass that farm down without having to sell a large portion of it to pay federal estate taxes," said Lange.

Specter said his position would be to "keep intact farms" and said there are proposals on the state level to set aside money to keep the farm. "The estate taxes are enormously expensive, and what we have to do is find some way to defer taxes."

Specter also fielded questions related to foreign trade and opening up the U.S. markets to Mexican imports. Several farmers believe that the Bush Plan needs to be reconsidered. "My sense is there are going to have to be some changes made," said Specter. "I have been very unhappy with the way the Executive Branch has handled foreign trade. I favor the principle of free trade if there are no subsidies, no dumping, and if there is reciprocity and if the other side doesn't have built-in advantages. I'm definitely opposed to exporting U.S. jobs."

Arden Tewksbury, president of Progressive Ag, told Specter about the plight of dairy farmers and the falling milk prices. "More and more dairy farmers are going out of business," because of the cost of dairy farming exceeds the prices for the product, according to Tewksbury. Specter replied that members in the Senate and House of Representatives need to more fully understand the situation. "In the Appropriations Committee, we had this bill most recently to raise the (milk) price $5 and it failed," said the senator. "We just have to keep plugging."

He said it it possible that about 100 new members of the House and Congress representatives from the state will provide support, even though the Senate already voted in favor of it.

Another question focused on removing property rights without compensation, particularly wetland laws across the country. Newly introduced legislation will allow compensation for landowners when the right to use the property has been taken away.

Specter said his position is that compensation is a "constitutional right" and that he acted similarly with the passage of the Clean Air Act of 1990. "I represent almost four million farmers and a lot of coal miners. We worked through the technology for a balance so everyone was satisfied."

N.E. DHIA Sets Record

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Northeast DHIA Milk Analysis Laboratory recently set a new record for turnaround time.

During July and August, in-lab turnaround was 0.8 days-the best ever for the cooperative.

September totals are not yet available but the lab has continued to maintain some of the highest standards of accuracy within the industry.

August was also the best month on record for total turnaround time. Sample day to mail for the entire, system, including truck runs, milk analysis transmission to the Dairy Records Processing Laboratory and DRPL processing averaged 4.5 days.

As far as could be determined, this is the first time a 4.5 day turnaround has ever been achieved.

Eight-Year-Old Shows Over-all Champion Sheep At Manheim

The family has about 20 ewes and four rams of Hampshire, Suffolk, and cross breeds.

Dazzle, the champion overall market lamb, will be put into the breeding program. The brothers attribute their strong showing to the sheep exercise program that includes jumping hurdles and to the feeding program using supplements.

Travis, a student at Manheim Central Junior High School, also earned first place in intermediate showmanship for the first time.

Reserve champion overall market lamb, champion sale lamb, and reserve champion breeding sheep honors went to Mark Tracy. The 16-year-old son of Gerald and Helen Tracy of Elizabethtown is a veteran in the show ring and was a repeat of "about two years ago," he said.

The reserve champion breeding sheep was a Southdown homebred yearling ewe. His champion sale lamb was a Dorset and Suffolk cross, also homebred.

Mark's brother, Ryan, had the reserve champion in the non sale market lambs. The Tracys have about 20 Southdowns and 50 Suffolk ewes, which Mark has been showing for about nine years.

For the second year in a row at Manheim, Regina Landis and her Hampshire yearling Amber took champion honors in the breeding sheep division. The 12-year-old said that last year she knew Amber was a good sheep but this year she wasn't certain if she was good enough. Regina, a 7th grader at Locust Grove Mennonite Schoo, plans to have Amber bred and show her offspring in next year's competition.

Regina's 16-year-old brother, Wendall, won senior showmanship for the second year in a row at Manheim. Wendall, a junior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, has been showing for six Breeding sheep honors went to Regina Landis, left, who showed the champion for the second year in a row and to Mark Tracy, who showed the reserve champion breeding sheep. Standing in back are Manheim Farm Show Queen Elizabeth Hess and sheep judge Tim Hall from Dalmatia.

Manheim Holstein Show Champion

bited by Darryl and Ruby Bollinger, Manheim. In their 20 years of showing, this is their first supreme champion at Manheim, said Ruby.

Judge Don Hostetter, a Chester County Holstein breeder, picked the senior division champion because of its udder and because "it walks on a real good set of rear legs, and I like its stretchiness in front."

Reserve, shown by Joe Wivell, also stood out, according to Hostetter, from an excellent class.

The champion of the junior show (combined 4-H and FFA divisions) in the Holstein breed was awarded to Janelle Wivell, and Melanie Balmer picked up reserve.

Of the colored breed classes, Ayrshire champion was shown by Anthony Spickler, and reserve by Robyn Groff. Heather Henisee was awarded champion Guernsey and brother Jason won reserve. Grand champion Jersey went to Melanie Balmer, and reserve went to Ryan Groff.

There were a total of 47 animals and 16 exhibitors at the show. Following is a list of show placings.

Farmer Overcomes Fear

ents, went down the steep slope, directly into a stream which feeds into the Conococheague Creek. The creek in turn feeds into the Potomac River. The river, inevitably, makes its way into the Chesapeake Bay.

Another, older manure storage area, built in 1977, wasn't cleaned out in years. Burkholder discovered that four feet of sediment had built up over the years, and massive amounts of nutrients were leaking into the nearby creek.

The dairy farmer became aware of the serious problems, and needed ways to solve them.

Burkholder, fearing DER fines, decided he had to do something.

Requested help

In the fall of 1990 the dairy farmer requested, through the local conservation district and Soil Conservation Service (SCS) office, help from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. SCS engineers and field representatives visited his farm and assessed the situation — moving him up in priority because of his dire situation — and drew up plans.

In the spring of 1991, with cost sharing from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and the Chesapeake Bay Program, Burkholder was able to clean up the old pit. He also installed spouting to clear barn roof water, and put in place a square, 300,000-gallon capacity, concrete dry manure basin with ramps. He also banked and sealed off the pushoff to stop the flow of water down the slope. He also put in a poured concrete sediment alley (which acts as a terrace to stop erosion and to control the flow of water into the stream).

With a lot of his own money, Burkholder set up and refurbished several paddocks to help control nutrients. For the "whole farm" approach to solving the problems, Burkholder is grateful — and for his work, the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD) recently recognized the farm with the 1992 Clean Water Farm Award.

"I was scared about going in and signing up with the program," said Burkholder. "I didn't want to get into trouble. But I should have realized that they were here to help."

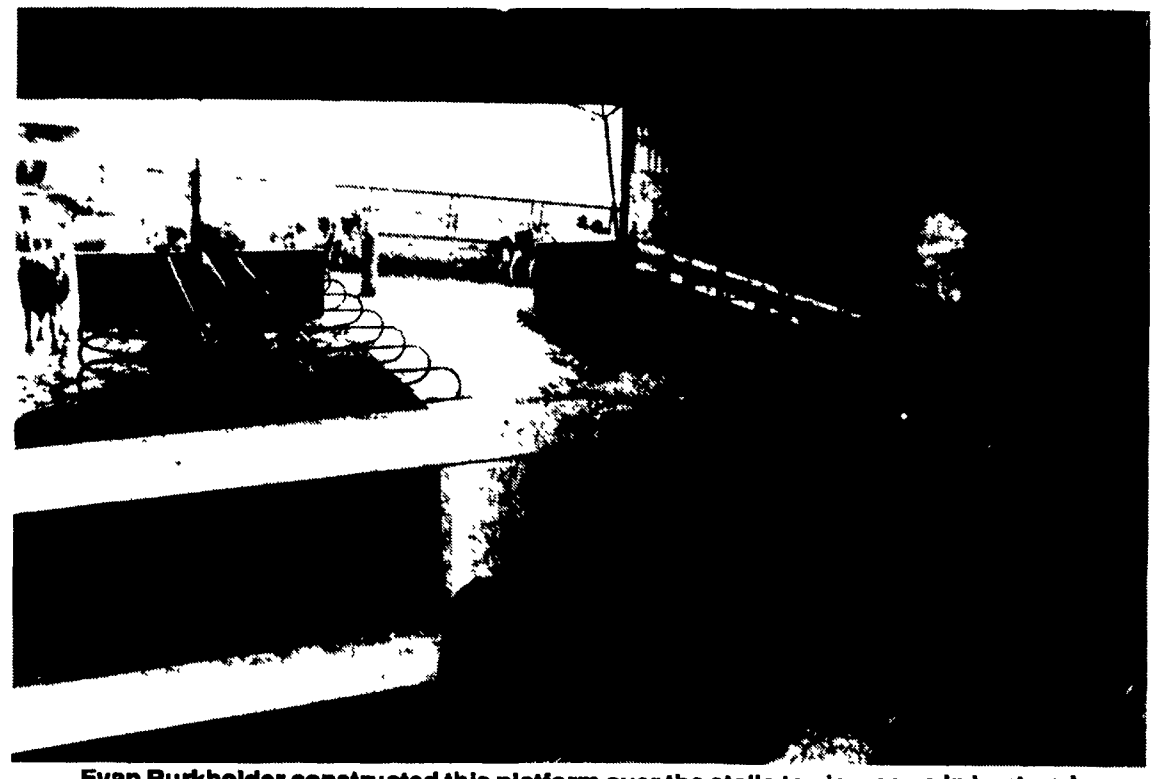
Suspected problems

Burkholder said for years he suspected problems. He had taken over the dairy in 1979, bought out the equipment and animals from his father in 1984, and finally purchased the farm in 1989. Through those years, upkeep on the farm (because of his massive debt load and trying hard to make payments) decreased.

Something had to be done.

"The stream was just 50 feet from the pit — I never measured it, but the bank stops and it's a stream, and it's as close to the stream as you can get," said Burkholder. He was able to make several adjustments and improvements to the suggested plans — all within acceptable limits. In the first quarter of 1991, work began, first with spouting installation, and then with the construction of the dry pit.

Burkholder was able to bank and seal off the pushoff to stop the flow of any water down the slope. He also put in a poured concrete sediment alley (which acts as a terrace to stop erosion and to control the flow of water into the stream) where he stands.



Evan Burkholder constructed this platform over the stalls to view cows in heat and supply feed to the troughs.

Burkholder said the spouting, for rain water, was installed to divert only clean water directly into the stream. Then, the first manure pit was cleaned out and sealed off with a concrete floor. A square-shaped dry pit, holding about 300,000 gallons, was constructed. (The 8-foot deep pit is sealed off with 1 foot of concrete on 4-foot footers on a 4-inch concrete floor. The banking surrounding the pit consists of 6 feet of clay.)

Clean it out

The pit's ramps allow accessibility to clean it out. While many farmers use the standard circular pit, which is easier to agitate than a square pit, Burkholder said "time will prove there's a problem" with the circular manure storage structures, because they will be hard to clean out.

But as for the old manure pit, Burkholder said they didn't think anything of it.

"It was three years before we cleaned it," he said. "We didn't think anything — it's evaporating. When I told (the conservation agencies) that, they said it was leaking! Not evaporating — leaking!"

Burkholder said the family spend days cleaning out the old pit. Later on, they found out that in order to get cost-sharing in their county, they had to provide the pit with a concrete bottom to prevent leaking again.

Improvements made

All these improvements were made to continue the operation of the farm, according to Burkholder.

"I had to do it simply to be able to keep farming," he said. "I knew someday somebody would catch me putting manure into the streams. It was just a matter of time. It wasn't if, it was just when."

The projects to improve the stream water quality to and solve the problems of manure runoff cost approximately $55,000. About $30,000 came from the Bay program and $3,500 from ASCS. The rest, $22,000, came out of Burkholder's pocket.

Burkholder said he spent about $16,000 of his money the first year, and admitted he was lucky to spend the money when the price of milk was high. "I spent my money in a good year and got most of their money in a bad year," he said.

Impressed farmer

The "overall" approach to solving the farm programs is what most impressed the dairy farmer.

As part of the Bay program, he also had his manure tested. "When I saw the nitrogen in that manure, I thought, wow!" Burkholder said the Penn State Agronomy Guide said an average test will provide about 2.8 percent nitrogen per gallon of manure. His tested, from one pit, at 3 percent and another at 2.5.

Because of the results, recommendations suggested that the dairy farmer refrain from applying starter fertilizer on corn and other crops. Also, less manure had to be spread, and Burkholder was able, with the installation of a manure management plan, to carefully track and apply only the manure amounts needed.

"Possibly I'll never use starter again," he said.

Require plans

Burkholder said many townships and most farm banks require nutrient management plans. Banks especially won't give a farmer credit without them, because of possible future liabilities for nutrient pollution from farms.

Nevertheless, Burkholder believes there were many benefits from the work on the farm.

"It's worked out that I'd do it sooner or later," he said. "It brought $30,000 into this area that normally wouldn't have come in."

His story went out to several area newspapers. He has received feedback from other farmers who had severe nutrient management problems that found out and now are implementing plans from the Bay program and the local conservation district.

Went well

"Everything really went well here and I didn't have a problem," he said. "When the Chesapeake Bay does it, they do the entire farm. They don't want your farm to ever be a problem again."

Burkholder said the experience dispelled any fears he had with working with government agencies.

"I was impressed. People said, 'Oh, man, don't joint up with that, you'll be sorry.' But they came out, and said, 'What's your problem? What do we need to do?'

"The idea of the award program is to get the message out that you don't have to be afraid," he said. "So many people say, 'Oh, we don't want to deal with the government. They won't hold up their end.' But they do come back to check it and make sure it's working."

'I had to do it simply to be able to keep farming. I knew someday somebody would catch me putting manure into the streams.'

Problem prevalent

Burkholder said the problem is prevalent everywhere. He said many farmers inherit a farm, originally built to handle a few animals, which has grown way out of proportion to its original design.

"Manure pits are an evil of farming — I mean, it's manure! But managed properly . . . I can look back now and tell any farmer, do it. Stop and think what you're doing, though. Just don't jump in and build one pit."

Burkholder, on the fourth generation family farm, manages 123 acres and rents an additional 35 for a total of 132 tillable acres. His registered and grade Holstein herd (85 altogether, 76 milking) averages 20,313 lbs., 626p, 734f. The cows are milked with a double-4 parlor. Burkholder raises an additional 65 replacement stock and grows about 60 acres of corn and 72 of alfalfa.

Burkholder farms with his wife, Lori, and sons Austin, 6; Aubrey, 5; and Ashlin, 3.

KILE Collegiate, 4-H, FFA Livestock Judging Tight Finish

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — While the college team contests may not have been as close, the individual scores were very close among those competing in the livestock judging contests held this week at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The University of Illinois won the collegiate division of the Livestock Judging Contest.

The team representing the Midwestern college scored a total of 4,605 points overall, more than 100 points ahead of the second and third place teams who did not enjoy such a wide margin.

Ohio State scored 4,498 points and Georgia scored 4,497. Auburn University and Illinois State University rounded out the top five.

The overall scores for individuals competing in the contest were very close, in fact several tie-breakers were necessary. Tony Franks from the University of Illinois was the high scoring individual in the collegiate division, accumulating 939 points. Following Franks were Lori Cash from Penn State University, 934; Corrinne Ferris from the University of Kentucky, 933; Terri Boggess from Virginia Tech, 931; Ryan Morris, University of Illinois, 923; and Rick Stephenson, Georgia, 923.

The contest, open to agricultural colleges in the United States and Canada and state 4-H and FFA judging teams, pits contestants against one another on their ability to judge some of the nation's finest livestock.

In the junior livestock judging contest, the high scoring team was the Ohio 4-H, scoring 2,150 making it a nationally newsworthy item. This irresponsibility raises concern and fear in the population, which is totally uncalled for.

As long as the media plays into the hands of these minority groups, we are destined to be led by these voices. The impact of a few voices, given prime time exposure, can panic a nation. (Alar being an example of this.) They present a totally biased, unfair and destructive view of what America is all about.

Until the news media accepts responsibility for rational and unbiased reporting, we must, as the consumer, be wary of what we read and hear.

Working For You From the Ground Up

Chinese Visit

The Stauffer farm was chosen for the international visit because it demonstrates intensive animal production and how the Stauffers are using composting to dispose of animal waste. The Stauffer farm has also been used in government studies for water quality. The Chinese are interested in doing these same underground studies in their country because they are also faced with high density manure problems.

In 1980, the U.S. government drilled a well on the Stauffer farm to keep record of what is happening underground. Stauffer said that a publication will soon be released that reveals the governments findings on sediments, pollution, and underground activity.

Aaron and his son Clark joint farm 65 acres, which has been in the family since 1912. They raise 2,200 broilers and 1,000 plus pigs in addition to crop farming the land. Last year, Clark raised one-half acre of vegetables. The endeavor was so successful that this year, Clark raised 12 acres of vegetables, which he markets at a roadside stand and at a few local supermarkets.

The Stauffers do not use any commercial fertilizer. Their composting bins are used as a disposal for dead chickens. It takes about five weeks to fill one bin before it is topped with manure and allowed to go through a 7 to 10 day heat cycle that reaches 150 degrees. After the heat drops to about 100 degrees, the bin's contents are dumped into an adjacent bin where it completes another heat cycle. The composting is then complete and the compost is spread on the fields. No water is used in composting, which eliminates odors.

The Chinese were amazed to see that the chickens placed in the compost bin that morning had partially decomposed by late afternoon.

Clark said that even a sheep or hog can be decomposed in the compost bins used on the farm. Although he had been told that it was necessary to chop up larger carcasses, Clark said that he hasn't found that step necessary.

Previously chickens were composted in the ground on the Clark farm. But studies showed that the decomposing was happening too close to the ground water. For that reason, an above the ground compost was needed and has proven extremely effective.

"In the long run, compost bins are very cost efficient versus disposing of animals in other ways. In addition, you have the benefit of putting compost back on land," Clark said.

The Chinese were curious about the machinery, especially the Slurry Buggy used to haul liquid manure. They remarked that instead of silos, the Chinese dig trenches to store silage.

When the Chinese toured the Stauffers' fields, they tasted the tomatoes in order to compare the taste with those grown in China. Clark cut up two watermelons when he found the Chinese love them. The Chinese import watermelons from the U.S.

China has basically two types of farms: the intensified state-owned farm around the city and the one-acre rural farms. Although some of the state-owned farms have large chickens, the farms are not as nearly as automated as in this country. The Chinese admired the automation on local farms, but they were most interested in seeing methods of farming adaptable to the small among the top 25 All-American contestants in the National Collegiate Dairy Cattle Judging Contest is selected for the $2,000 award.

Iager Chosen

Iager has a great deal of experience in judging dairy cattle. When he was a member, the Delaware Valley College collegiate dairy judging team ranked tenth in the World Dairy Expo National contest. He was in the top twenty individuals in all three national contests while maintaining a straight A (4.0) grade point average.

Matt enthusiastically participates in any dairy judging he can. He placed first in the HOLSTEIN WORLD All-American Judging Contest in 1990, and his family took first place in the HOARD's DAIRYMAN Judging contest in 1984 and 1985. He successfully participated in many 4-H judging contests before he went on to college. At D.V.C., Iager organized and ran a judging clinic for the students resulting in two of the students team winning honorable mention in a national judging contest.

John Plumer, Iager's faculty advisor at D.V.C. writes, "Matthew is an outstanding individual. He is the most organized student I have encountered in 21 years of college teaching. He is a self-starter and very motivated to do his very best in all endeavors. His academic work is exceptional and his enthusiasm for learning exemplary. It is truly a pleasure to have Matthew as a student."

The variety and number of Iager's extracurricular activities at D.V.C. reflect his enthusiasm. He served as treasurer of the Dairy Society, participated in College Band, several committees for Dairy and Pre-veterinary societies, participated in the Northeast Students Affiliate Animal Sciences, assisted with student recruitment and was involved in many community projects at his home.

Matt says, "I've always believed that you have to have an interest in something to have energy. I have many interests; dairy judging, dairy bowl, dairy fitting and showing, each of which gives me a special pride and enthusiasm to work hard in order to do well and succeed in life. My goal and desire is to succeed as a large-animal veterinarian."

Iager showed his first Holstein calf for a 4-H project at age nine. He continues working, during school breaks and summer vacations, on the family farm where he and his brothers represent the fifth generation to run this 400 registered Holstein dairy, 12,000 bird turkey operation and 1,200 acres of crops.

Dr. J. Lee Majeskie, Associate professor at the University of Maryland and Extension Dairy Specialist says, "I have worked closely with the Charles and Judy Iager family during the past 18 years and have seen Matt grow and develop. I am extremely impressed with the many accomplishments that he has attained in both the state and national dairy programs and activities. Matt is a hard working young man who is dedicated to achieving excellence no matter what the challenge may be."

Matt noted that "the Kildee scholarship would be very meaningful to me in pursuing a career working with dairy cattle. This prestigious scholarship will be put to valuable use in my graduate studies. My integrity, honesty and pride will determine my future and set me apart as a person with a positive outlook on life; one who loves the dairy industry; and one who will strive to be a success as a dairy cattle judge, as a graduate student and as particing veterinarian." He has chosen the field of veterinary medicine as "a source of energy and vast interest."

Iager says vet school is a big challenge, but he is meeting that challenge and is extremely impressed by the caliber of the 82 students in his Freshman class at the Blacksburg campus.

Chinese

Chinese farmer.

While the emphasis on the visit was to learn more about general farming in America, Aaron, who had previously visited China, said, "We can learn a lot from the Chinese too."

Aaron was impressed that individual Chinese homes use the methane gas from their sewage to heat their own home.

Aaron likes the friendliness and inquisitiveness of the Chinese people and would like to see Americans working more with the Chinese people.

According to Gerald Heistand, assistant administrator of Lancaster County Conservation District, who led the tour, an exchange of ideas may take place next year. He said that a proposal is being reviewed to send professionals and some Amish to China to see if the small methane digesters could be adaptable for use on Amish farms.

Conversation between the Chinese and the Stauffers was not strictly agricultural. The group members seemed impressed that Aaron's wife owns a restaurant (Cloister Restaurant in Ephrata) and that one of his sons (Ron) works with the mother and another with the father. They asked a lot of questions about the relationship.

The Chinese were amazed at the abundance of trees in the area. They said, "We have too many people to have room for trees in our country."

4-H, FFA Champion Achieves KILE Senior Lead Line Crown

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Together with her well-behaved, well-groomed Dorset yearling ewe named "Sara," Christine Baxter, 17, Marlinton, W. Va. shimmered under the limelight with her two-piece 100 percent wool suit she made as senior champion of the lead line show.

The Potomac State College freshman has been showing in 4-H about 13 years, and won her first championship (six years in the making) at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) last Saturday.

Christine, with the wool suit she handcrafted, also sported a V-neck blouse trimmed in white looped lace accented with two red buttons. The skirt included a black zipper, and the earings and red accessories matched perfectly, according to the judges. Her well-groomed Dorset ewe also wore a bow around the neck made from the same material as the outfit.

Christine's family raises about 105 head of Hampshire sheep and another 85 head of Dorsets, one of the largest breeders in Pocahontas County, W.Va. She is a member of the Pocahontas FFA, and said this year she'll be traveling to compete in the 4-H Congress. She said she is also one of four finalists in the national FFA sheep competition.

Tabitha Ebersole, 12, York, captured the judge's attention with her hand-made bright 100 percent wool checkered black, royal blue, and fuchsia semifitted jacket for the junior championship. The fully lined hip-length jacket has lower back pockets and a single button closure. The pants are 100 percent wool challis lightweight in basic black. Tabitha also wore a wool felt hat designed with matching headband and bow. She also wore black shoes, a belt, and a silk fuchsia blouse.

Tabitha showed her Hampshire yearling ewe. She said this is her first KILE lead line championship. The Dallastown Middle School seventh grader is the daughter of Steve and Lynn Ebersole, York.

Laura Langlatz, 16, Monkton, Md. wore her intermediate champion 100 percent wool outfit in a red plaid and periwinkle blue. Her plaid vest features a V-neckline and elastic in back. Also featured are gold sheep buttons and periwinkle blue shorts fully lined with side pockets and back zipper. She wore a white blouse with tie and a matching bow for her hair, and ivory accessories completed the outfit. Laura's Southdown yearling ewe named Muffin wore a rosette from the same fabric as her outfit.

Laura, a junior at Hereford High School in Monkton, Md., has been showing for 10 years, and this is her third Keystone show. She is the daughter of William and Ruth Ann Langlatz, Monkton, Md.

Homestead Notes

Calling it one of the biggest and best shows in the world, Assistant Secretary of the USDA Gene Bailey, far right, attended KILE last week. Accompanying Bailey on a tour of KILE was, far left, Dennis Grumbine, who was named to the Livestock Hall of Fame by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association. Grumbine stands next to his wife, Barbara, second from left and Christine Baxter, senior sheep lead line champion.

For the fourth year in a row, Susan Wise placed second in the senior lead line competition at KILE.

Meals Away From Home Eat Up Food Budget

"I'm tired. Can't we just go out and grab something to eat?" How many tiems have you found yourself saying that? Statistics from 1990 show that 45% of adults eat out at least once on a typical day. My guess is that many working adults eat our for lunch. The research also reports that 40 cents of every dollar is spent on food away from home.

For a farm family these numbers suggest at least two messages. First, if you do not eat out very often because you work at home, you deserve credit for preparing thrifty meals and using your own home grown foods to stretch your food dollar. Secondly, if money is tight and you do eat out on a regular basis, you can make some positive changes.

When families spend money on food prepared outside the home, they are paying for service. Obviously, that means you will get less actual food for the dollars spent than if you would buy the ingredients and prepare the meals at home.

Making meals from scratch is generally less expensive, but there are a few exceptions. You can actually save money by buying these products rather than making them from scratch in your kitchen: instant mashed potatoes, canned cranberry sauce, frozen orange juice, bottled lemon juice, frozen fish sticks, boxed pudding mix and ice cream. If you enjoy having salads for your meals, you can use this system to save both money and time. When you shop, pick up the croutons, bacon bits, cauliflower, mushrooms, grated cheese and fruits at the salad bar in the produce section. Then pick up a head of lettuce and pack of carrots or celery from the schlf. Purchasing items this way allows you to take advantage of the best amount of food for the price.

Here are a few other suggestions for ways to stretch your food dollar when you are away from home.

• Fopr family outings or daily work rountines, pack a cooler or grocery bag filled with fresh fruits, vegetables and sandwiches. Carry a plastic jug with water, too.

• When eating in a restaurant, order water as a beverage. This will reduce your bill and will also save you some calories. Consider skipping dessert or providing your own cookies or fresh fruit. Most places make a considerable amount of money on beverages and desserts.

• In the daily routine, practice setting aside some leftovers for the next day's lunch, and eat before running errands in town. You will be less tempted to eat out if you already have something planned at home.

Eating out, whether it is done occasionally or every day can eat up a family's food budget. If your family is experiencing money stresses, I encourage you to keep track of how much you're spending on meals at fast food shops or buying deli items and convenience foods. Can you save money? What could that money accomplish if it were used differently?

For some families, having more time is more important than saving money. If your family is able to pay its bills and has some extra funds, you may choose to prioritize your needs differently. For you, it may be worth the extra expense of paying someone else to make, package, serve and clean up the leftover food, so that you ahve time to do other activities. This is a choice. For those who have the resources, consider this choice carefully. Also look at how often you are eating out.

But when finances are stretched already, it is wise to look at your food budget. Can money be saved by spending more time to prepare meals at home?

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Crisp, bright, sunny days. Chilly nights streaked with moonbeams and shadows. Frosty mornings with ever-so-light dustings of icy white sprinkled across the tops of the big hay bales stored in the lower fields.

It's the squirrel-ly season.

No, not pre-election squirreliness. This is the real squirrel-ly season - as in store it, stash it, stick-it-away.

Actually, squirrel-ling things away begins much sooner, like in June. That's when we stash away in the freezer caches of strawberries and raspberries, or boil them up into thick, sweet jellies for spreading with peanut butter into sandwich snacks for milking-chores sustenance.

Containers of frozen peas, string beans and corn add to the layers squirrelled away in the freezer. Meanwhile, the basement shelves sag beneath the weight of quarts of thick, reddish, tomato sauce and dark, sweet grape juice.

Squirrel-ly season picks up as the evening light fades earlier and coolness settles in well ahead of the sunset. And the neighborhood potato havest swings into high gear.

Though I palnted nary of potato, there are more squirrelled away in the ground cellar than usual this year. Our good neighbors are generous in sharing their bounty. Plus, a couple of undergound stores of potatoes still lie buried in the garden, where volunteers undug from the previous season sprouted and raised their own families of offspring spuds.

When cold weather wilts and lush volunteer grass, I'll go a'diggin with my garden spade some sunny fall afternoon and unearth the waiting treasure.

Also squirreled away is a falt of pale-colored tomatoes. The harvest of Long Keepers is my best yet of this storage tomato, though the yield still has plenty of room for improvement. Cool nights and cloudy days cut into potential larger pickings of storage tomatoes.

The stash of yellow, plus a few red, onions stored on the basement porch is diminishing rapidly. Periodic checking has turned up the softies that were not keeping and allowed for pitching them before they ruined the rest of the batch.

Squirreling the garden havest away has always been a particular source of personal satisfaction - especially come mid-winter when the supply of fresh, canned and frozen homegrowns becomes doubly precious. But, years ago, "putting by" food supplies was not a pleasurable hobby but a necessity if the family intended to eat through the winter months.

The potatoes, the carrots, the turnips, the pumpkins carefully stored from Fall's bounty provided diet mainstays of "fresh" food for the next half-year. No expansive and colorful supermarket produce section awaited to replace cabbages rotted in storage or a barrel of apples gone mushy by early February.

Broccoli year-round unheard of (broccoli was almost unheard of, period), and lettuce and tomatoes were delicacies to be enjoyed in-season only. Grapes and melons shipped halfway around the world to be eaten as the snow fell was science fiction-stuff to our grandparents, who were thrilled if they received a single orange on Christmas morning.

Because I can "squirrel" food away as I choose, and not because my family's life depends on it, makes my strong away of potatoes and turnips and onions and apples an enjoyable pleasure, rather than a burdensome chore.

And, if I get too busy with other matters, stashing away cuttings of geranimums and impatiens and snapdragons and potting fall bulbs for the greenhouse, we'll still have plenty to eat anyway.

Sometimes, I forget to remember just how awesome a blessing that is.

WHY FINE GLASSWARE TURNS CLOUDY?

The cloudiness that sometimes appears on fine glassware after it is cleaned in the dishwasher is called etching. Good crystal, or soft leaded crystal, tends to more susceptible to it than everyday glassware.

Etching is the result of the action of hot water and detergent in the dishwasher. It tends to be more prevalent with soft water and is, unfortunately, permanent and irreversible. Therefore, one of the best ways to avoid etching is to forego the dishwasher in favor of washing fine glassware by hand. Where the dishwasher is used, use the following precautions to minimize the possibility of etching. Use a minimum amount of detergent, but not less than one tablespoon. Be sure the water temperature is not more than 140 degress F. Underload the dishwasher so everything is rinsed and drained thoroughly. Dry without heat. A rinsing agent or a detergent formulated for natural soft water may also help.

STATE OF THE ART FIBERFILLS

New developments in fiberfills are meeting a growing consumer demand for alternatives to down and feather fillings. These chic synthetics are machine washable, hypoalergenic, durable, resilient, odor-free and generally inexpensive.

Ultima is a slick, hollow fiber charaterized by down-like qualities, such as minimal matting, insulation capabilities, resiliency and loft. New thermal comforters include Comforel Supreme., a high-end microdenier fiber for a low loft comforter that is a warm as down, and Quallowarm, a mind-priced comforter that efficiency traps and retains heat. Both are lightweight, washable and hypoallergenic.

Polorguard is a continuous filament batting with thermal properties. Because it will not clump or shift, the comforter does require channeling of baffling, processes that add weight, cost and inhibit loft.

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF HEMLINES

This fall, European couture collections have hemlines which are definitely long or definitely short. Banished from the scene is the conservative, lady-like mid-knee length. In its place are dresses and skirts that go as high as mid-thigh or as low as just above the ankle.

For the fashion-conscious who scorn short dresses, pants, often wide and cropped three inches above the ankle, are the long alternative. Other solutions include ankle-lenght skirts with leg-revealing slits, wrapped sarongs that open to reveal shorts, and short, opaque dresses veiled with a layer of ankle-length chiffon.

'A' Is For Apple

Pennsylvania's apple growers are enjoying the benefits of a national fitness boom that has fueled a dramatic increase in the consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Last year, 41 percent of households increased their consumption of fresh fruit, according to a survey. That trend shows no signs of slowing down.

Today's health conscious consumers are looking for foods that contribute to a well balanced and nutritious diet. Whether it's counting calories, controlling fat or adding dietary fiber, more consumers purchase apples for health reasons than any other fruit. With only 80 calories and no fat or cholesterol in each medium apple, it's no surprise they're America's favorite fruit for snacking.

It's also no surprise that apples lend themselves to many different ways of cooking them and combining them with other foods. According to the recipes sent in by our readers, apple pie continues to be a number one favorite with consumers.

Take advantage of the color and flavor of fruits at their autumn best. Serve apples often.

APPLE PIE FILLING

6 pounds Golden Delicious apples
2 cups sugar
⅓ cup flour
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Peel, core, and slice apples. Put in solution of vinegar and salt to keep from turning brown. Combine sugar, flour, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Mix well. Remove apples and rinse well. In large kettle, put apples, sprinkle with flour mixture. Stir carefully. Let stand for 30 minutes. Stir in lemon juice. Cook on medium heat until mixture thickens and registers 212 degrees on a candy thermometer (takes about 2 minutes). Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Ladle hot filling into hot jars. Process in hot water bath for 25 minutes or pressure canner at 5 pounds pressure for 8 minutes.

Makes 6 quarts. 1 quart filling makes 1 8-9-inch pie.

Contributor writes: this is a very good pie filling. Everyone to whom I have given my recipe raves about how good it is.

MOTHER'S OLD-FASHIONED APPLE PIE

4 to 5 cups peeled and sliced tart apples
1½ cups sugar

FRENCH APPLE CUSTARD TART

Double pie crust
Filling:
3 cups sliced peeled apples
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Custard:
⅓ cup butter, softened
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ to 1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Creme Anglaise:
1 cup whipping cream
2 egg yolks
⅓ cup sugar
1 to 2 teaspoons vanilla
Dash cinnamon
Dash nutmeg

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Prepare pie crust in 9-inch pie plate. Do not prick crust. Partially bake crust at 425 degrees for 10 minutes. If crust puffs up, gently press back to bottom and sides of pan with back of wooden spoon.

In large skillet over medium-low heat, combine filling ingredients. Cook about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; drain. Set aside.

In small bowl, blend custard ingredients. Mixture will not be smooth. Spoon apples into pie crust-lined pan. Pour custard over apples.

To make lattice top, cut remaining crust into ½ -inch wide strips. Arrange strips in lattice design over apple mixture. Trim and seal edges. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown.

In medium saucepan, bring cream just to a boil. In small bowl, combine 2 egg yolks and ⅓ cup sugar. Blend a small amount of cream into yolks. Blend yolk mixture into cream and cook over low heat about 10 minutes or until mixture coats a spoon, stirring constantly. Do not boil. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cool slightly. To serve, pour small amount of warm Creme Anglaise onto individual cake plates. Remove sides of tart pan; cut tart into wedges. Place piece of warm tart on top of sauce. Store in refrigerator. Serves 8 to 10.

Featured Recipe

Here is a recipe to celebrate National Pork Month. The recipe comes from Carla Histand, a reader from N. Newton, Kansas.

CHOPS AND SPUDS CASSEROLE

4 pork chops, 1-inch thick
1 pound potatos, sliced raw
½ cup butter
½ pound onions, thinly sliced
1½ cups crushed tomatoes and juice
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon marjoram

Brown pork chops in butter and season with salt and pepper. In baking dish, layer one half of the potatoes, onions, salt, pepper, and remaining potatoes. Place meat on top.

Add flour to drippings in pan and mix until smooth. Slowly mix in tomatoes and juice. Add marjoram and cook sauce until thick, stirring often.

Pour sauce over meat. Cover with foil or lid and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or less if chops are thin. Check after 50 minutes of baking time.

Youth Learn About Legislation At Citizen Washington Focus

Beth Whitman Pitzer
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

BOILING SPRINGS (Cumberland Co.) — This past summer, Diane Myers of Boiling Springs had a wonderful opportunity to learn more about legislation and government at the national level. She represented Cumberland County at Citizen Washington Focus in Washington, D.C. Youth ages 15-18 from all across the nation stayed at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Maryland, to participate in the program.

The week of July 12 to 18 was filled with experiences simulating that of government. They experienced a political campaign in "Dotville," a fictitious city which they represented. Three leaders represented one dot in the government here. They were divided into three groups: blue, green, and red. The "green dots" tried to pass a bill on the topic of The Environment at Risk. They tried to pass a bill using ethanol instead of gasoline. Their bill didn't pass. The team that did win was proposing to build a park. They voted on these issues and bills that were presented at a city meeting. Much time was spent to prepare the bills and debates.

Part of their experience was to try to meet with a legislator. Diane met with Kimberly Strycharz, a legislative assistant. Diane was impressed with the fact that they had six college students working there.

Diane's favorite part of the experience was voting night. She was on the voting committee. She enjoyed registering about 30 people and taught them to use a voting machine.

The youth from across the country who attended this also had quite a sampling of culture. Delegates from Pennsylvania stayed in Gettysburg the first day to get to know each other and to tour the battlefield and see the electric map.

In her two days of free time, Diane visited the Hard Rock Cafe in Washington, as well as the Smithsonian. Another day was spent at the Washington Zoo which she defined as "pretty fun." She was mainly impressed with the white tiger at the zoo.

The amount of sight-seeing and culture they saw for one week was impressive. They listened to a jazz band while lunching at the Kennedy Center. They saw a nighttime view of Washington D.C., including the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials. Union Station was another favorite with its big mall and old train station. They had opportunities to create their own culture. The group had an "Expressive Arts Show," which gave the youth a chance to share their talents. Damon Fisher from Pennsylvania played an impressive "Fast Blues in B Flat" with his trombone.

Back at home, Diane is a senior at Boiling Springs High School. She is the daughter of Richard and Ethel Myers. Diane has a brother Mark, age 13, and two sisters, Diane enjoys 4-H and is active with three clubs. She is a member of the Conodoguinet Sheep Club where she has had the opportunity to breed and show sheep at the Farm Show.

She's also a member of the Flying Fingers 4-H Club and a quilt club. She's a news reporter for County Council and plays tenor sax for the band. She's the alternate dairy princess for Cumberland County.

Diane is looking at a two-year college after high school. Her main impression of government — as a result of her experience this past summer — is that she doesn't want to be involved at the national level. She understands now why it takes so long for something to happen. Overall, she thinks it's a "really great thing to do in 4-H!"

Diane Myers reviews pictures of her trip to Citizen Washington Focus.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Kiddie Tractor Pull, Agri-Kid Olympics, Pig Rooters Highlight Entertainment At KILE

Photos and stories by Andy Andrews and Lou Ann Good

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Bob Hale and his racing pigs were back at the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition held in Harrisburg last week.

"We race no swine before it's time," Hale told the crowd who waited impatiently for the race to begin.

To race pigs, Hale said, one needed a PhD, which means "Pig Handlers Degree."

The stands were filled with "pig rooters," who shouted and cheered as their favorite pig raced or waddled to the finish line.

The pigs held such names as Funny Sausage, Sausage Link, Shakin' Bacon, Cool Hand Luke, and Magnum PI.

Just like his opponents, the winning pig gets a simple reward — a chocolate cookie — which they gulp down in true pig fashion.

Before each race, a leading "Pig rooter" was chosen from the crowd to represent their favorite pig. If their pig won the race, the pig rooter received a poster — a picture of a pig, of course.

Racing pigs, which hold names such as Funny Sausage, Shakin' Bacon, Cool Hand Luke, and Magnum P.I., entertain the crowds at the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition in Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — What's it really like to be a pig?

"It's hot, but worthwhile," said James Kettle who gets plenty of chances to be a pig.

During the day, Kettle is a salesman for Hatfield Meats. But, at night, Kettle often dresses up like Smiley the Hog. He tells students about the pork industry.

His outfit is very hot, but Smiley is looking forward to cooler days. He has ordered a new air conditioned suit, which costs $10,000.

"The suit is a professional suit made by the same people who made the Phillies Phanatic suit," Kettle said.

"It will be a great to be a pig when I get that."

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It was a tight race.

At first, Chris Smith, 9, Ashland, Ohio threw the bale of tightly wrapped hay more than 15 feet. Then Chris's friend, John Hostetter (who lives 15 minutes away in Stone Creek, Ohio) threw the bale more than 18 feet. Another record!

But it wasn't over. The bale was falling apart and had to be retied. Then, Daniel Anspach, 10, threw the bale about 25 feet, and beat John, Chris, and others in his age group at the Lebanon Valley National Bank (LVNB) Agri-Kid Olympics last Saturday.

There were a lot of events for children of all ages at the olympics, held during the Keystone International Livestock Exposition at the Farm Show Complex. More events included a horse show pitch, hog calling, wheelbarrow racing, and a sack race.

After the olympics, the Evergreen Tractor Kiddie's Pedal Pull featured more winners for different age groups.

In one set, records fell left and right. John Passwaters, 6, Bridgeville, Del. beat first runner-up Brittany Findlay by pulling the measurement tape on the tractor an even 73 feet. His day record-setter topped about eight others in his age group, including Sarah Reinsel, 6, New Bethlehem (40 feet, 1 inch) and Leah Stilman, 6, Drumore (55 feet, five inches).

Following is a partial list of tractor pedal pull placings.

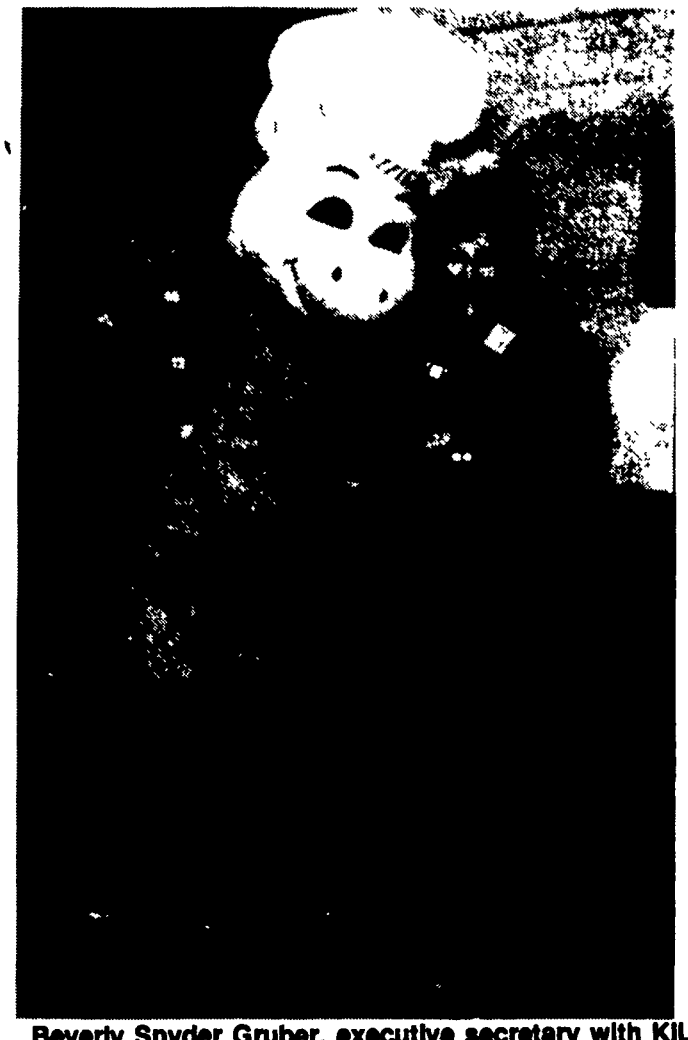
With a lot of cheers by friends and family, John Passwaters, 6, Bridgeville, Del., pedals the tractor as far as he can — 73 feet even at the pedal pull contest at KILE.

These "pig rooters" cheer for their favorite swine.



Beverly Snyder Gruber, executive secretary with KILE, admires Smiley, the hog sponsored by Hatfield Meats.

John Hostetter, 9, Stone Creek, Ohio tosses a bale of hay to beat friend Chris Smith 18 feet, 4 inches.

Beef Cook-Off Winners Announced

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The 1992 National Beef Cook-Off® (NBCO) "Best of Beef" title and $15,000 in cash and prizes were awarded to John Hund of San Francisco. Hund was one of 64 contestants participating in the 19th annual National Beef Cook-Off held in Sacramento, Calif., on Sept. 17-19. A total of $35,000 in prize money was awarded to 11 winners.

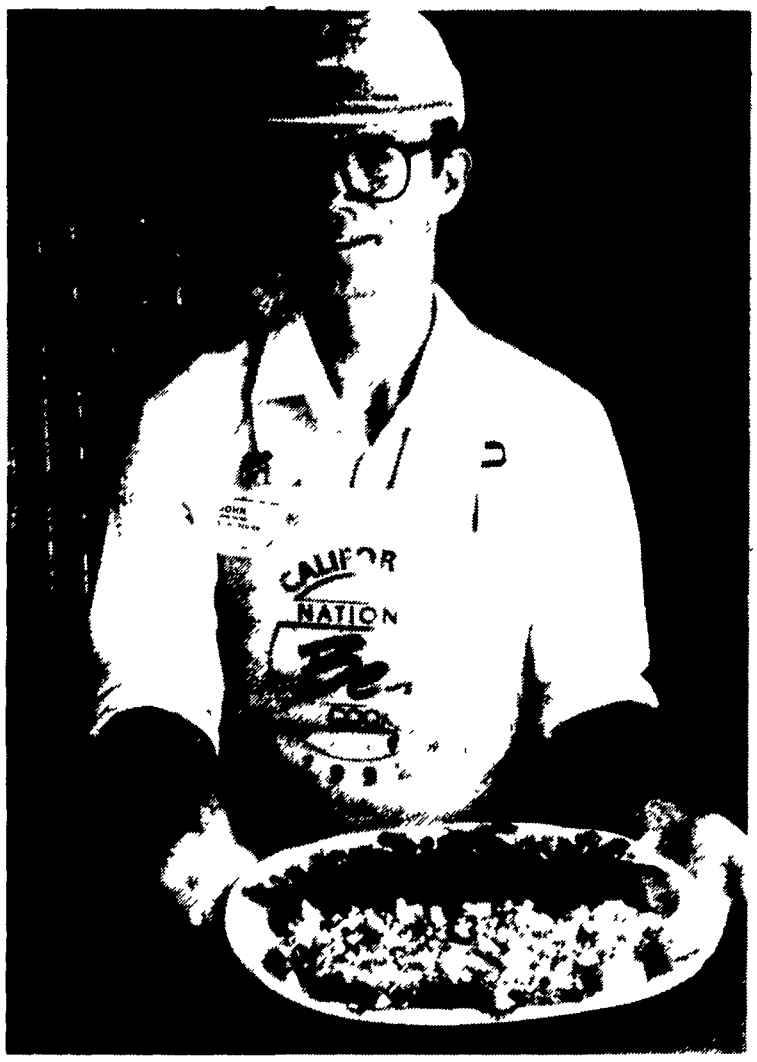
The NBCO, one of the foremost cooking events in the nation, generates publicity that reaches millions of consumers with positive messages about beef's place on America's dinner plate.

Hund's recipe, "Margarita Beef with Orange Salsa," exemplifies California cuisine at its best, using citrus fruits and beef in an imaginative and creative fashion. It showcases the popularity of grilling in an outstanding main dish versatile enough to serve for a quick family meal or a casual weekend dinner party. After marinating, the recipe takes less than one hour to prepare. This recipe is ideal for today's time-pressed cooks like Hund, an auto shop manager, husband and father.

"Tenderloin Steaks with Pepper Jelly Sauce," created by Frances C. Andrews of Wilson, N.C., was the first-place recipe in the Indoor Conventional category, earning her $5,000. Andrews also earned additional honors and a prize of $1,000 for "Most Convenient Beef Recipe."

Joyce L. Bowman of Raleigh, N.C., was the big $5,000 winner in the Microwave category with "Curried Beef, Black Bean and Corn Salad."

"This year's Cook-Off winning recipes continue to showcase how beef fits into today's menus," said chief judge Peter Kump, noted syndicated writer. "It's always a challenge to judge these recipes because the competition is so intense. Yet, contestants continue to come up with innovative ways to prepare beef with an increasing focus on healthful, versatile and easy-to-prepare recipes."



National Beef Cook-Off® winner John Hund, San Francisco, walked away with $15,000 and the "Best of Beef" title with his classic California creation "Margarita Beef with Orange Salsa."

The 20th annual National Beef Cook-Off will be held in Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 11-13.

The National Beef Cook-Off is sponsored by the American National CattleWomen, Inc. in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council and the Beef Board. The 1992 event was hosted by the California CattleWomen. National corporate contributors of the 1992 contest were TAPPAN® and KINGSFORD® with Lucky stores providing all groceries for the competition. Walco International was a contributor for the ranch tour.

North Carolina contestant, Frances Andrews of Wilson, wins $5,000 and top honors in the Indoor Conventional category at the 1992 National Beef Cook-Off® held in Sacramento, Calif. Andrew's recipe, "Tenderloin Steaks with Pepper Jelly Sauce," also won honors as the "Most Convenient" Recipe.

Karen Becker Wraps Up Swine-Showing Career

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PENRYN (Lancaster Co.) — Not only does the Manheim Community Farm Show wrap up the Fair season in Lancaster County but also Karen Becker's nine years of swine show ring competition.

"I'm really going to miss it," said the 18-year-old who consistently earned showmanship titles and ribbons for champion hogs.

Although Karen enjoys working with pigs, she said, "I really showed pigs because of the people — the swine club family is really awesome."

Karen plans to pass on her legacy of showmanship and champion wins to her two sisters, Melissa, 14, and Amy, 11, who are already well known in swine competition.

Because the sisters and their parents, Marlin and Nancy Becker, live in the village of Penryn, they do not have room to raise hogs. Instead, they board about 50 head about 10 miles away at Earl Geib's farm in Elizabethtown where the pigs run on one acre of orchard, which has a shelter.

Karen believes the consistent wins for their swine are related to the pigs being raised outside in the middle of winter.

"It really builds leg muscle," she said.

In 1987, Karen had the grand champion pig at the Farm Show, and has won the champion showmanship title there for two years in a row.

One of the highlights of Karen's career happened this year at the Elizabethtown Fair Swine Show when the three sisters captured the champion showmanship awards in the senior, intermediate, and beginners divisions.

Karen said that when she first began showing pigs, she did not win any ribbons for four years "until we figured out the trends to have more of a flat top and meatier hog than a taller and thinner one as they required when my dad was showing during high school."

The Beckers also received a lot of help in upgrading their swine by talking to hog breeders and purchasing a better quality hog.

The sisters pull numbers out of a hat to determine who shows what pig.

Each sister keeps her own prize money, but the profits from selling the hogs are divided among them.

The record keeping required with the swine project has taught Karen responsibility and skills in financial record keeping.

"It's that bottom line that is important," Karen said. "Pigs are more profitable than sheep and steer projects."

Showing steers was a short-term project for her, "Because I definitely can't handle them," she said. "Besides," she added, "steers take more patience, but pigs make more money."

One of the most disappointing years for the sisters happened when the farm was quarantined for pseudorabies and the Beckers could not compete at the state Farm Show.

Last year when Karen was seriously ill with an undiagnosed illness, her sisters had to do most of the work with the pigs.

Melissa said, "That year when I won, I knew I deserved it. Other years, whenever I won, I knew that it was because Karen had done most of the work."

After months of being ill, Karen finally was diagnosed as having Epstine-Barr Syndrome, chronic fatigue. With treatment, Karen's health has consistently improved.

When she first returned to the show ring at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, Karen could barely tolerate being in a closed building. She did not win the coveted title this year, but when she earned the top showmanship award at the Elizabethtown Fair, Karen said, "That marked complete recovery of health for me."

Since then, for Karen, every award that she has won "was doubly special because I came back after being so sick."

As a 1992 graduate of Manheim Central High School, Karen was active in FFA. She held offices as FFA student advisor, secretary, treasurer, and was in charge of the citrus fruit sales for several years. She earned all the FFA degrees through Keystone and is now working toward the American Farmer Degree.

Karen is president of the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club. She received the Carl Nestleroth award for the outstanding 4-H member and the Beckers were previously named 4-H family of the year.

With her swine-showing days behind her, Karen plans to concentrate on her job at Smucker Meats, Manheim, and on preparing for her January wedding to Larry Dull, who was a FFA classmate. The couple will farm in the Manheim area.

Because the Beckers do not live on a farm, they travel 10 miles everyday to an Elizabethtown farm to care for about 50 pigs. From left are Karen, 18; Melissa, 14; and Amy, 11; with parents, Marlin and Nancy.

In her nine years of showing pigs, Karen Becker has taken some ribbing from her classmates. "But I don't let what other people say intimidate me," she said. That attitude has allowed her to win stacks of ribbons, from showmanship to grand champion hog at the Pennsylvania Farm Show and county fairs.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Our youngest daughter, Cindy, was recently married in northern Pennsylvania. It brought together all of her brothers and sisters from four states. We all stayed for the weekend in the same motel. This way we could have our meals together. As all of our ten grandchildren were there too, we had a lively time.

Our daughter choose an ivory satin gown that was elaborately beaded. It had a large bow in the back and a long train. There were so many flowrs everywhere. The flower girls carried baskets of them and each windowsill had a bouquet too. Each table at the reception had a large bowl of big white roses and the guests were urged to take a rose home with them.

Cindy put months of planning and work into the affair and things went smoothly. The lady minister did a good job of coching us during the rehearsal.

The day after the wedding the whole family of 24 were invited to Cindy's house. She and her husband had bought a six-foot submarien sandwich as the main food item. Of course, there were at least a dozen other dishes, too.

One unfortunate incident was a tumble that the youngest grandchild took down five or six carpeted steps. And, I was the one supposed to be watching him while his mother ate her lunch. One minute, no make that one sound, he was beside me and the next he was at the bottom of the steps with a samll gash in his forehead. It certainly dampened our spirits and I felt absolutely awful.

That evening my daughter phoned from New Jersey to say the child was fine. She knew how I felt and wanted to reassure me.

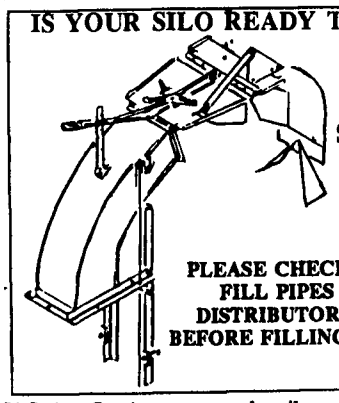
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

WILL SERVICE 3 TO 4 DAYS OR LESS ON MOST JOBS

OUR MAN FOR PRESIDENT

You can count on Bush

Had enough of the Bush bashing by Big Labor, TV pundits and Whining liberals. We have .

You don't need a doctor's degree from Harvard to know we have a bonafide world leader in President George Bush.

And boy, do we need a world class President in the days ahead.

That's where trade wars are sparked. And prices set. Whether it's oil or cheese. Tractors or computers. Dry milk or wheat.

And it's in this world market place that Bush is working to curb the unfair export practices of the European Economic Community.

And where Bush opened the door for more farm exports to Japan.

At home, it was Bush who engineered a new free trade pact with Mexico and Canada this year. And that also opens a huge new market for U.S. dairy products, poultry, eggs and wheat.

Farmers need a world leader at our country's helm. Now more than ever.

If you want action, go to the top man. Lebanon county farmer Dennis Grumbine, left, did just that, meeting with President George Bush in the White House. Grumbine is Bush's ag chairman in Pennsylvania.

4-H Learn And Earn Training Sessions To Be Held

One-day training sessions for the 4-H Learn and Earn for Fun and Profit Program will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Berks Co. Agricultural Center on December 9. Extension agents and anyone interested in becoming an adult volunteer are encouraged to attend.

The first of its kind in Pennsylvania, the program takes youths ages 12 through 18 through each step of starting and running a business. It covers choosing a business, writing a business plan, starting operations, making financial decisions, advertising, monitoring growth, and speaking at public meetings.

Learn and Earn for Fun and Profit is compatible with many extension and 4-H programs, including family living, community development, urban gardening, small business, agriculture, and farm and livestock management.

Since the program began in 1990, youths in 10 counties have participated.

"These young people have developed leadership and organizational skills that will be tremendous assets when they begin seeking jobs," said Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Now we would like to make the program available in all counties."

The training sessions will provide an overview of the program and explain how it addresses young people's needs. Sessions will include information on getting a group started, establishing and leading an advisory committee, and recruiting and training adult leaders. Also covered will be resources for agents and volunteers and examples of what some of the youth groups have accomplished.

There is no charge for the workshop, and volunteers' lunches will be paid for by a grant from the Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H. For more information, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402-9041 (717) 757-9657.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Tulpehocken FFA Dairy Team

The FFA dairy judging team from Tulpehocken High School won first place recently during the competition at the Big E Fair in Springfield, Mass.

The judging competition was a consolation competition for second-place finishers at the state level. Competing were Jennifer Grimes, first overall; Andrew Bicksler, third overall; and Michael Hix. All are seniors at Tulpehocken.

For the competition, the team judged six classes of cows and took a test on sire selection and linear evaluation, and also took a DHIA management test.

National 4-H Council Grants

Two Pennsylvania 4-H counties have been named recipients in the National 4-H Council 1992 grant program. Awards were presented from Amoco Foundation, Inc. to 4-H programs in Cumberland and Indiana counties.

The funds are being given to support innovative projects and activities which will increase interest in and enthusiasm for the petroleum power programs. Only three programs were selected nationwide.

The Cumberland County 4-H program received a $1,000 grant to assist in teaching small engines, rocketry, model airplane, and aerospace technology projects to youth. According to Anthony Betonte, extension agent, a three-day event will provide 30 hours of hands-on instruction and include a self-esteem segment. New 4-H members will be recruited.

The Indiana County 4-H program will be coordinated by the 4-H Safe Tractor Club by organizational leaders Dan and Leanne Griffith. Club members will develop a portable kit that demonstrates an understanding of safety with petroleum power activities.

Goals will include awareness of safety concepts of reaction time and alertness, proper protective clothing, and clothing that may be caught in power equipment. Participants will be involved in hands-on presentations, and coalitions will be formed with other groups interested in safety education in agriculture, America's most dangerous occupation.

National 4-H Council uses private resources to enhance the development and education of 4-H youth.

Donations are still beeing taken and can be sent to (make checks payable to) Boots & Saddles 4-H Club, 988 Fruitville Pike, Lititz, PA 17543, (717) 872-4587.

3 FARMS! 320+ ACRES! 3 FARMS!

For Dr. & Mrs. Robert N. Ragland. After a number of years of hands-on farming besides his professional vocation, Dr. Ragland wishes to engage in other pursuits, and will offer the farms at public auction.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1992

CHICKEN B.B.Q. SUPPER

DEAR DAIRYMAN:

MASTER MIX® AND PFIZER® WOULD LIKE TO THANK YOU FOR PURCHASING RUMA WORM PAC. WE KNOW IT WILL BE AN ECONOMIC BENEFIT FOR YOU WHEN USED WITH YOUR DAIRY ANIMALS.

ADDITIONALLY, WE HOPE YOU ENJOY THE WARMTH OF YOUR MILK COW BLANKET

Master Mix RESEARCH APPROVED

Farmacy® Animal Health Products

Five good reasons to deworm your whole herd with Ruma Worm Pac.

1. Worms are a whole-herd problem. They threaten the health and productivity of your young stock and milking herd alike.

2. Rumatel makes whole-herd deworming easy. You can effectively deworm calves, heifers, dry cows, lactating cows and bulls in one simple treatment (Baymix® requires six)

3. No milk discard. TBZ® forces you to dump eight milkings ($2,200 worth in a 100-cow herd averaging 50 lbs. of milk per cow per day, and at a milk price of $11/cwt.). With Rumatel you don't waste a drop.

4. No milk residues. Ivomec® may only legally be administered to males and pre-breeding weight heifers, while Rumatel may be safely fed to lactating cows at any time without risking milk residues!

5. Rumatel is extremely palatable. Unlike other in-feed dewormers, Rumatel doesn't make animals back off feed.

There's just no good reason to settle for incomplete or inconvenient deworming. Ask your feed supplier for Rumatel today.

Rumatel is a Pfizer Inc trademark for morantel tartrate. Baymix is the Cutter Animal Health trademark for coumaphos. TBZ is the Merck and Co., Inc. trademark for thiabendazole. Ivomec is the Merck and Co., Inc. trademark for ivermectin. For a copy of an independent research article about milk residues in lactating cows given injections of ivermectin, write Pfizer at 235 E. 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017

KILE Duroc Sale Sets Record

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Williams County swine farmer captured top honors during The Keystoine International Livestock Exhibition (KILE), held at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg last week.

Howard Parrish, who operates Parrish Farms near Edon, Ohio, showed the Duroc grand champion gilt, the reserve champion boar, and was named premier exhibitor. In addition, one of Parrish's boars was sold for a new record price of $6,300 during the Keystone International Duroc Classic Sale.

Parrish Farms is a 250-sow purebred breeding operation. The four-generation family farm is located two miles east of Edon.

His 1992 appearance at KILE was his first in more than 20 years. Parrish last competed here in 1969, when he took home a ribbon for showing the champion boar and gilt.

Parrish served as a judge during the 1992 Pennsylvania State Farm Show in January of this year, and he is scheduled to judge again during the 1993 Pennsylvania Farm Show to be held January 9-14 in Harrisburg.

KILE, the premier indoor exposition of livestock on the North American continent, was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania State Farm Products Show Commission.

Following is a list of show placings.

Agway Plans Restructuring

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc. has announced the results of a comprehensive eight-month study into the future of the company.

The process, called "Customer Driven: 1995... Focusing on the 21st Century," was initiated in early 1992 to evaluate Agway's future business strategies in relation to customer needs.

"The Customer Driven: 1995 project has been the catalyst to build a strategy for Agway to move positively into the future," said Charles F. Saul, who became president and chief executive officer of Agway earlier this year. "This process, identifying specific business strategies, centered around the market demand of three core businesses: agriculture, consumer, and energy. By implementing these strategies, we will become more responsive to our customer needs, improve service, reduce costs, and increase profitability to ensure a strong cooperative for the 1990s and beyond.

"We are now implementing a number of the structural changes that have been identified through the Customer Driven process," Saul said. "The cost associated with the restructuring of both our human and physical resources to the markets we intend to serve has been identified and estimated at $75 million."

This restructuring charge represents the impact of the programs and changes that will be implemented in the current organization over the next three years, according to Saul. The restructuring cost is being reflected as a charge against Agway's fiscal 1992 operating results, which show a consolidated loss of $58.8 million on consolidated sales of $3.3 billion for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1992.

Saul said, "Agway management and the board of directors have taken this approach to expedite the transition in the best interests of our members, customers, and investors," Saul said. "Agway has absorbed this restructuring charge while maintaining equity in our cooperative of over $190 million at the fiscal year-end. Our plan of action will serve to accelerate the improvement over the prior year that was achieved in some of our businesses during the past year."

According to Saul, Customer Driven '95 has defined the future of Northeast agriculture and how Agway will serve this market, given a clear picture of Agway's markets and the potential for growth, and demonstrated the need for Agway to streamline its organizational structure and tap new systems and technology.

"These changes we are making will result in selected work force reductions and some facility closings," Saul said. "In the case of both jobs and facilities, it is premature to discuss specific numbers of locations. We expect the process to evolve over a number of months and beyond we build a stronger Agway."

He said, "This has been a hard and healthy look at Agway's business. As the largest, most comprehensive study ever made of our cooperative, it has involved hundreds of our employees, members, customers, and suppliers. We have had to make a number of tough calls as the result of these findings, but it will allow us to build on our strengths and focus on our core businesses."

Details of the Customer Driven '95 project have been and will continue to be presented to Agway staff and members, leading into the cooperative's annual meeting scheduled for October 29-30 in Syracuse, N.Y.

"This is a planned, long-range approach to doing business. We made the decision to implement this process to sharpen our competitiveness and prepare for the challenges presented by a rapidly changing business climate," Saul said.

Kubota Tractor Corporation has expanded its M Series line of agricultural tractors by adding the 70 PTO horsepower M7580 and 91 PTO horsepower M9580 models, both powered by a four-cylinder, liquid-cooled diesel engine.

Tractor Engines Deliver High Torque Output

COMPTON, Calif. — Kubota Tractor Corporation has added the 70 PTO horsepower M7580 and 91 PTO horsepower M9580 models to its expanding M-Series line of agricultural tractors.

Powered by 4-cylinder, liquid-cooled diesel engines, the new M7580 and M9580 models deliver high torque output, improved lugging ability for strong, steady power in wet, muddy or soft soil, and quick recovery from sudden load increases, making them ideal for heavy loader and row crop work.

Kubota's exclusive integrated circuit fully synchronized shuttle transmission, standard on both tractors, lends superior efficiency to loader work under all operating conditions. The system allows quick direction change without use of the clutch, and smooth tractor movement thanks to two hydraulic clutch packs that work in combination with an onboard microcomputer. The M9580 comes standard with 24 forward and reverse speeds, while the M7580 has 12 forward and reverse speeds.

Each of the new M-Series tractors features a hydraulic system that provides the largest hydraulic capacity of any comparable tractor. This means that the M7580 and M9580 can lift more, faster.

Three independent, gear-type hydraulic pumps provide a total capacity of 29.6 gpm. The 3-point hitch has a lift capacity of 4,613 pounds (at 24 inches behind lift points), with an optional assist kit providing more than 5,700 pounds of lift.

The M7580 offers a bevel-gear, 4-wheel-drive system, which permits sharp turning radius and a crop clearance of 22 inches, comparable to many 2-wheel-drive tractors. The M9580 also has bevel gear 4-wheel-drive but with the added feature of Bi-Speed Turn. The M9580's Bi-Speed Turn gives this Kubota the smallest 4-wheel-drive turning radius of any 4-wheel-drive tractor its size. Plus, it can be engaged and disengaged on the go by pushing a button on the dashboard.

Operator safety and comfort are enhanced on both models with choice of Kubota's Ultra Cab™ or four-Post ROPS with sunshade and retractable seat belts, a deluxe adjustable seat, tilt steering wheel, and power steering. In addition, Kubota's popular Easy Checker® panel reveals the tractor's condition and fluid levels at a glance.

For more information, contact Kubota Tractor Corporation, 550 West Artesia Blvd., Compton, CA 90220.

Deere Adds Sprayer To Line

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has introduced the new 6500 self-propelled sprayer, which joins the 6000 Hi-Cycle in the sprayer line.

The new model features hydrostatic drive, more horsepower, an optional wide front axle, a larger solution tank, optional hydraulically adjustable rear tread spacing, electronic controls, and optional electronic spray rate control.

The 6500's hydrostatic transmission with two-speed, on-the-go shifting provides smooth starts and an infinite range of ground speeds up to 15.2 mph. For added ease of operation, the system's dynamic braking action helps maintain a constant ground speed down sloping terrain. The transmission also permits high engine rpm at any ground speed to maintain solution pump pressure and responsive, quick hydraulics for increased productivity.

The 3.9 liter turbocharged John Deere diesel engine, rated at 94 hp, develops more than 50 percent more power than the naturally aspirated engine in the 6000 Hi-Cycle for increased machine performance even in the toughest spraying conditions.

Two front axle choices are available. The standard shock-absorbing, single-tire front axle contributes to operator comfort and gives the machine a short 11-foot turning radius. The optional adjustable wide front axle provides increased stability on hilly or rough terrain. Tread settings range from 78½ inches to 118½ inches. An under-frame clearance of 50 inches handles most crops. The axle extends the 6500's wheelbase an additional 19 inches for a smooth ride and a 13.7-foot turning radius.

Rear tread is fully adjustable from 78 to 120 inches to accommodate virtually all row spacings. Optional electrohydraulic rear-tread adjustment makes tread setting fast and easy. Rear under-frame clearance is 72 inches.

The 420-gallon polyethylene solution tank has 30 percent more capacity than the 6000 Hi-Cycle for increased productivity. A sight gauge on the rear of the tank provides a convenient way to check solution level. An optional quick-fill attachment is available.

The high-capacity 6.5-inch centrifugal solution pump is well-suited for high application rates and proper agitation in the solution tank to keep chemicals in suspension.

Electronic rocker switches on the hydrostatic-drive control handle literally put boom raise and lower, wing fold, and master spray valve functions at the operator's fingertips. Flow to each boom is controlled with a consoled-mounted switch. Switches for controlling the solution pump, pressure adjustments, rear tread spacing, and auxiliary hydraulics are also conveniently mounted in the side console.

For added convenience and productivity, an optional electronic spray rate controller/monitor regulates solution flow to maintain a constant application rate at any ground speed. The operator can easily program the controller with two different chemical application rates if desired. The system delivers spray immediately at start-up for thorough coverage and increased productivity. The controller also has an override circuit for full manual control. The monitor provides data such as field

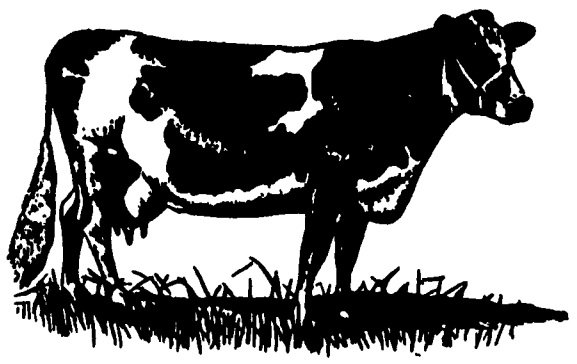
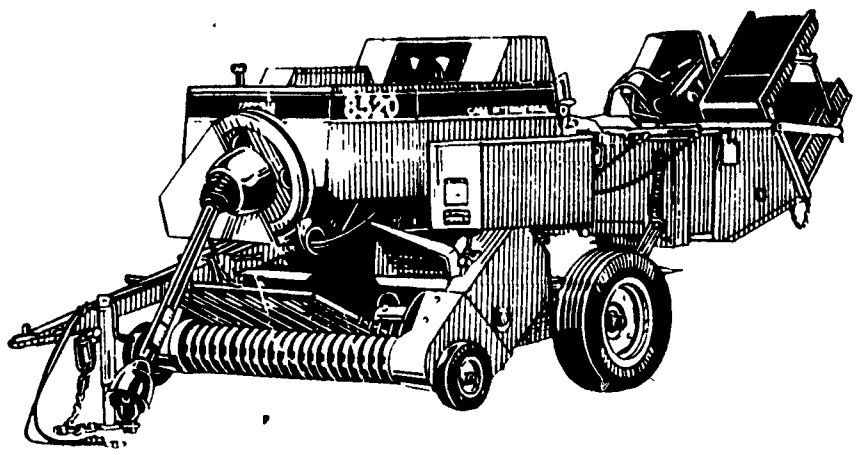
"Her" Choice





If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake... leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Case IH Center Line Balers...one of the quickest ways to increase milk production without adding cows. Improve your bottom line with improved leaf savings.

Cash In Second At KILE

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Livestock Judging Team competed against 12 other collegiate teams at a collegiate livestock juding contest held at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) in Harrisburg last Saturday.

In what proved to be a challenging and difficult contest for the Penn State team, one bright spot emerged as Lori Cash came within five points of winning the contest. Lori finished second out of 76 contestants.

One year ago, Donnie Sheiss represented Penn State extremely well, winning the KILE contest. This year, Lori Cash, an elementary education major from Centre Hall and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Erskine Cash, continued the tradition of truly outstanding performances by Penn State students at KILE.

After dropping 33 points in class placings, Lori started the day off by finishing first in judging beef cattle with a score of 380 of a possible 400 points, including oral reasons scores of 47, 48, and 48. She also garnered the award for the individual scoring highest in judging Angus cattle with 196 out of 200 points. The Angus division included a class of junior yearling Angus heifers and Angus junior bull calves, with oral reasons given on both classes.

Lori continued her excellence in the swine judging division by scoring 326 points out of 350 and finishing second individually.

Probably the most notable accomplishment of the day for Lori was her total oral reasons score of 367—seven points higher than the next closest competitor. Lori's 367 points represented an average oral reasons score of 45.9 for the eight sets of oral reasons delivered.

As a team, Penn State finished eighth in swine, ninth in beef cattle, and tenth in sheep, while finishing ninth overall. Other team members who represented Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science include Leigh Ann Brown, a dairy and animal science major from Nottingham, Chester County; Dave Elkin, an agricultural engineering major from Marion Center, Indiana County; Bob Leslie, a dairy and animal science major from New Castle, Lawrence County; and George McQuiston, a dairy and animal science major from Harrisville, Venango County.

The next contest for the Penn State Livestock Judging Team should be a real challenge as they travel to the American Royal in Kansas City, Mo., in early Novemember. From there it is off to Louisville, Ky., for the National Senior Collegiate Livestock Judging Contest in mid-Novemember.

From left, Dr. Erskine H. Cash, professor of animal science in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science; Lori Cash, Penn State high individual overall in oral reasons, beef cattle, and angus judging at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition intercollegiate judging contest; and Keith A. Bryan, coach, Penn State Livestock Judging Team.

area, field volume, total volume sprayed, and area sprayed per hour.

An optional three-section boom spray control increases the flexibility to target chemical application to meet varying field requirements.

The 6500 can be equipped with a standard 47-foot boom or optional 60-foot model. A 4-, 6-, and 8-row directed spray boom is available for under-canopy and other spraying requirements in row crop operations. Nozzle tips in a variety of types and sizes are available for all three booms.

A corner post monitor provides digital information on engine and ground speed, solution pressure, and engine hours. Indicator lights alert the operator if an abnormal condition develops with the engine or hydraulic system and when the park brake is engaged or the air cleaner needs servicing.

A four-gallon rinse tank holds water for rinsing hands and cleaning contaminated gloves or clogged nozzles and strainers.

The new tilt and telescoping steering wheel increases operator comfort. The hydraulic disk brakes provide greater stopping ability and increased reliability.

Flexible polyethylene shields on rear and wide front axle wheels won't bend or rust. The color is molded in to enhance long-term appearance.

An optional tow bar package is available for both axle configurations. Quick-release couplers for the final drive torque hubs and a steering tow valve are included in the package. The steering tow valve makes hooking up and towing easier.

DMI Announces Reverse Double Disc Sealer

GOODFIELD, Ill. — DMI, Inc. recently introduced a new version of their NH_3 double spring disc sealer which has the same features except reversed disc blades (the concave part of the discs faces inward. This results in residue left on surface while loose soil is directed back over the knife slot for reliable NH_3 sealing.

Accordng to DMI, this new unit is ideal for mulch-till, ridge-till, and no-till high-residue farming. The unit features 14-inch disc blades with heat-treated bushing, fits NH_3 applicators with 1-inch x 2-inch shanks or 1¼ -inch coil shanks, and includes grease zerks for easy maintenance.

Focus On Swine

The National Pork Producers Council has recently published the "Swine Care Handbook," providing pork producers across the nation with the latest information available on proper swine care.

These practices are recommended for safe, humane, and efficient pork production on U.S. farms. Following are a few important excerpts from the NPPC publication, but if you desire more information or the complete guide, contact NPPC, P.O. Box 10383, Des Moines, Iowa 50306 or call (515) 223-2600 and ask for your free copy of the "Swine Care Handbook."

Swine Biosecurity

Producers need to discuss with their veterinarian how to establish procedures to minimize the risk of disease transmission from neighboring pork production units, herd additions, and vermin. Attention also needs to be given to reducing the likelihood of transmission of disease organisms from one group of pigs to another within the same farm.

• Herd additions. When animals are acquired, particular attention must be paid to the applicable regulations, especially those dealing with transportation and health. The health status of a potential source of stock should be assessed before animals are acquired. One way to accomplish this is for the producer's veterinarian to contact the veterinarian of the potential source. They can discuss the health status of the herds and make judgements on potential problems from herd introductions. Pigs of unknown and multiple origins may pose special health risks and should be handled accordingly.

• Isolation. The physical separation of newly received animals from those already in the facility until the health of the new arrivals has been evaluated and found to be acceptable is important.

• Pig movement. Segregating pig groups by age helps decrease disease transmission within herds. It also allows for complete cleaning and disinfection of facilities during the unoccupied phase of an all-in, all-out regimen. In some situations, high temperature water along with detergents and disinfectants may be necessary for effective sanitation.

When pigs are transported to market, precautions should be taken to prevent any disease transmission from loading and unloading chutes or pens. Trucks entering the farm to load pigs should be clean, and trucks returning to the farm after marketing pigs should be clean.

• People movement. Producers should take precautions to avoid carrying disease pathogens between pens. Disinfectant footbaths for people moving between houses or rooms will help reduce the transmission of pathogens. The disinfectants in footbaths should be changed regularly to maintain effectiveness.

Producers should avoid contact with swine in other pork production facilities, but when such contact is necessary, appropriate precautions should be taken by producers before returning to caring for their pigs. These include showering and changing clothes. Every producer should provide clothing and footwear to farm visitors.

Safe Transportation

Safety and comfort should be of primary concern in transporting pigs. Weak pigs should not be loaded or transported with healthy ones. Appropriate steps should be taken immediately to segregate sick pigs and care for their special needs.

When pigs are transported, ventilation should be adequate and the floor should be slip-resistant. When possible, animals should be shipped in groups of uniform weight and species. Pigs of 50 pounds should have a minimum of 1.5 square feet per pig; 100-pound pigs, 2 square feet; 250-pound pigs, 4 square feet; and 400-pound pigs, 6 square feet.

Injuries and bruises can result in carcass damage when pigs are improperly managed during handling and transport.

Transport and handling stresses can be aggravated by adverse weather and wide temperature fluctuations. Hot weather is a time for particular caution. The Livestock Weather Safety Index is used as the basis for deciding how to handle and ship swine during extremes in the weather. While in transit in warm weather, swine should be protected from heat stress by being shaded, wetted, and bedded with wet sand or shavings. Prompt unloading in hot weather is essential because heat builds up rapidly in a stationary vehicle.

During transportation in cold weather, pigs should be protected from cold stress. Wind protection should be provided when the air temperature drops below 32°F., but ventilation must always be adequate. When trucks are in transit in cold weather for more than a few minutes, pigs should be bedded with chopped straw or other material that has insulating properties.

Air Quality

Air quality refers to the effects that the air has on the health and well-being of animals and humans. The quality is typically defined in terms of the air's content of certain gases, particulates, and liquid aerosols, including those carrying microbes.

Gases, dusts, and microorganisms can be produced from the animals and from manure decomposition, feeds, and building materials that are generally present in animal facilities and, to a lesser extent, outdoor operations. Undesirable gases and dust in the air must be controlled so that they do not create air quality problems in or around buildings.

Definitive standards for air quality have not been established for swine. A systems approach is most appropriate for achieving air quality in buildings. Acceptable air quality can usually be achieved with proper ventilation and air distribution, regular cleaning and sanitation, feed dust control, and manure gas control. Special attention to air quality should be given during periods of weather extremes, rapidly fluctuating temperatures, and manure removal.

The gases of most concern in swine facilities are ammonia, hydrogen sulfide, carbon monoxide, and methane.

The concentration of airborne dust is affected by many factors, including relative humidity, animal activity, air velocity, type of feed, and method of handling feed. Dust concentration is lower at higher relative humidities. Increased animal activity and high air velocities stir up particles and tend to keep them suspended. Microbes and pollutant gases may become attached to airborne particles. Dust levels can be reduced by utilizing combinations of approaches including adding fat or oil to the feed, proper pelleting and feeder adjustments, minimizing feed drop distances and open conveying, wetting feed, decreasing pig activity, and frequent cleaning of building and equipment surfaces.

Market Outlook

Penn State University of Ag Economics H. Louis Moore reports that there is good news on several fronts for the livestock industry as we approach autumn. The first good news in on the feed front — excellent rains since early July have nearly guaranteed a large corn crop here and in the Corn Belt. The season's first crop report, released August 12, indicates that the corn crop will likely be the second largest on record at

York Farm-City Tour

YORK (York Co.) — The 34th Annual Farm-City Tour sponsored by the York Chamber's Agribusiness Committee will be held on October 20.

The tour will include a variety of places located in south-central Pennsylvania and be concluded by a family style supper.

P.H. Glatfelter Company, located in Spring Grove, will be the first stop, where tour members will view the production of paper designed for use in fiction and non-ficition books, periodicals, envelopes, business forms, and specialty items.

Next, the tour will stop at the Ralston Purina Company of Camp Hill. There, visitors will tour the mill where more than 200,000 tons of livestock feed is produced each year.

Tour members will be treated to a visit at Robert Berkheimer's dairy farm located just north of Williams Grove in eastern Cumberland County. This sixth generation farm, purchased by Robert's great-grandfather in 1891, produces corn, alfalfa, and small grain on the rich limestone soils of the Cumberland Valley.

The Warrington Hunt Club, Inc., Rossville, will be the next stop for the tour members. This hunting preserve, which exceeds 350 acres, adjoins the Warrington Kennels and provides a preserve of 700 acres for hunting purposes.

The trip will conclude with a family style supper at the Wellsville Fire Company. Cost is $30 regular rate and $25 for Chamber members. Deadline for reservations is October 12. Bus leaves Queensgate Shopping Center at 11:15 a.m. Expected time of return is 7:30 p.m. For more information, call Grace Julius at (717) 848-4000.

Livestock Ledger

8.76 billion bushels.

This prospect has kept grain markets on the defensive. The current cost price in Chicago, at $2.12 per bushel, is 30 cents lower than a year ago. December futures at $2.18 are only 4 cents above the lifetime low for the contract. Cheap feed is always welcome news to the livestock industry — at least in the short run.

But the most recent good news for the pork industry came from The White House. President Bush annouced in early August that the U.S. would offer 30,000 metric tons of pork to the Commonwealth of Independent States. This amount of pork is equivalent to a day's slaughter or 380,000 hogs, giving upward movement to the hog market. It may cost the U.S. about $19 million in subsidies for this project, which is designed to force the European Community (EC) to come to terms on a trade agreement. The EC also ships a lot of pork to the Commonwealth of Independent States and U.S. hopes to get a share of the business causing a price war. Any increase in hog prices will be greatly appreciated by the industry, since prices are currently about $12 per hundredweight lower than a year ago.

Consider Silage Additive To Increase Crop Value

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — With corn-silage harvest just around the corner, dairy and beef producers should consider management alternatives to maintain or improve the value of their silage. Adding a silage additive is one option.

Dr. Larry Carver, research manager for Cargill's Molasses Liquid Products Division, said the company's liquid silage additive (LSA) is used with relatively low-protein, high-energgy crops such as whole-plant corn silage, sorghum silage, small-grain silage, or high-moisture grains.

LSA increases the protein level of silage, reducing the need for additional protein supplements and helping avoid feeding errors. The product also contains high levels of molasses, phosphorus, sulfur, and trace minerals, he said.

LSA is different from other feed supplements since it can only be added to silage or high-mositure grain at the time the crop is ensiled. It is not applied at feeding.

"That's an advantage, since the product can be applied at harvest and part of the feeding job is done for the year. In addition, treating silage with LSA at harvest allows producers to replace a higher percentage of natural protein with nonprotein nitrogen in the ration than by supplying nonprotein nitrogen at each feeding," said Carver.

LSA can increase the crude protein level by five percentage units if applied at the recommended rate of 40 pounds per ton for 35 percent dry matter silage and improve other nutritional deficiencies of corn silage to ensure maximum utilization of nonprotein nitrogen. It also raises the level of desirable fermentation acids and makes corn silage more palatable, he said.

Carver said applying LSA to increase protein levels at ensiling has other advantages, including the fact that it's:

- Consistent. There is no evaporation loss or migration in the silo. Farmers don't have to worry about protein variation when feeding rations. This allows more uniform daily intake.
- Economical. Producers save time and money at feeding by reducing the need for additional protein supplement.
- Safe. LSA contains no ammonia so there are no hazardous fumes, and it is nonvolatile.
- Non-corrosive. LSA won't damage equipment.

SCRAPE, DIG, PULL, LOAD, MOW AND MORE

Estate owners, landscapers and farmers will appreciate the Kubota B-50 Series' wide choice of handy implements.

These include mid and rear mount mowers, front loaders, boxscrapers, backhoes, posthole diggers, snowblowers, even rotary tillers.

Kubota's remarkable B-50 Series compact tractors come with mid and 2-speed rear PTO. Optional Hydrostatic transmission. From 17-24 HP.

Kubota's optional "Bi-Speed Turn" system allows smaller and precise turns in 4-Wheel Drive, which makes mowing, and even loading more efficient.

Reverse air flow cooling directs radiator heat away from the operator for a comfortable, quiet ride. Low piston speed extends engine life.

The Kubota B-50 Series. Versatile compact tractors.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

• BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
• BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
• BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
• BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

PSEUDORABIES: THE DISEASE THE REGULATIONS AND YOU

L. J. Hutchinson
Extension Veterinarian
Penn State

Editor's Note: This is the first article in a new column devoted to the control of pseudorabies.

Pseudorabies affects each swine herd differently. Sometimes it can be devastating — abortions, stillbirths, newborn pig losses, and sick pigs of all ages. In other herds, it's so mild as to cause little, if any, illness.

The pseudorabies virus (PRV) can be transmitted to other species such as cattle, sheep, dogs, and cats. In these species, it causes severe, usually fatal disease. However, it is not a threat to human health.

Why then are there state regulations, such as testing and quarantine, related to PRV? First, PRV is a highly contagious disease that can and does cause heavy losses on some farms.

After several years of indecision and debate, the pork industry, through the National Pork Producers Council and other industry groups, has decided that PRV can be eradicated from the U.S. and that pork producers will have healthier, more productive pigs once PRV is eradicated.

To reach that goal and to protect the many herds that do not have PRV, states have developed regulations and procedures to identify positive animals and herds and to prevent the movement of pigs from infected herds, except to slaughter.

State regulations on PRV are intended to reduce the risk of spreading pseudorabies to noninfected premises. Breeding swine must be negative on blood test within 30 days prior to shipment within Pennsylvania or into Pennsylvania. Feeder pigs from Pennsylvania counties with one or more PRV herds or from outside Pennsylvania must meet one of the following three requirements:

1) Originate from a qualified PRV negative herd

2) Originate from a PRV monitored herd

3) Be negative on blood test within 30 days prior to movement.

A PRV qualified herd is one in which 25 percent of the herd is blood test negative for PRV every 3 months. A PRV monitored herd is one in which at least 30 swine are tested and PRV negative within the preceding 12 months.

Farms on which PRV has been identified are quarantined to prevent movement of hogs except to slaughter or to other quarantined premises. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will release the quarantine when all hogs are removed and the facilities cleaned and disinfected or when negative status of the hogs has been demonstrated through blood testing. Later articles in this series will describe several herd plans that can lead to cleanup of a PRV infected herd.

Most states, including Pennsylvania, also test market swine as a means of identifying farms with PRV infection. Cull breeding stock are sampled at slaughter — if positive, a traceback to the farm of origin is done and tests are run to determine if the herd has PRV.

These state regulations are part of a 5-stage national program aimed at freeing each state of PRV and preventing reinfection. In subsequent articles we'll describe the 5-stage program and Pennsylvania's role in it.

As a pork producer, this eradication program and the regulations that accompany it affect the way you do business. Testing and restriction on movement of hogs can be burdensome, but unrestricted movement can allow a wildfire-like spread of the virus.

Beaver Fair

Shawn Hoffman showed the Reserve Holstein Champion of the Youth Show, Double-S-Acres Vanguard Sara, a Three Year Old Cow.

The need for a new livestock pavilion at Beaver Springs became obvious when not all the cows in the championship classes could fit under the open tent covering. Snyder County 4-H and FFA chapters were selling food at the Beaver Fair to help raise $15,000 toward a new building. The state has promised a matching grant if they can raise that amount by next year.

KILE Sheep Competitions Offer Visibility, Diversity

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 1,250 sheep were entered for competition in the hopes of earning cash premiums and leather banners during the 36th Keystone International Livestock Exposition this week.

A number of the region's young and veteran exhibitors faired well during the shows.

Hope's Hampshire from Knoxville, Md., exhibited the grand champion Hampshire ewe in the open breeding sheep show during the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), held earlier this week.

"Hope 91-07," a yearling ewe, bested 30 other ewes to win the distinction. Earlier in the day she won her class for one-year-olds.

Hope Hampshires, owned and operated by Betty and Marvin Hope, have been exhibiting at KILE since 1979 and have done quite well through the years. They now have about 30 ewes and maintain a commercial beef cattle operation.

Thirteen-year-old Matt Nesselrodt of Franklin, W.Va., exhibited the champion ram in the junior Suffolk show.

His January lamb, "South Branch Suffolks 207A," has an impressive record. He was supreme champion in the Tri-County Fair in Petersburg, W.Va., champion in the junior show at the West Virginia State Fair, and champion in the open Suffolk show at the Virginia State Fair.

Matt's family, owners of South Branch Suffolks, keep about 25-30 breeding sheep and hold over yearlings for next year's shows and sales. Matt, whose has been a member of the Pendleton Pioneers 4-H Club for five years, owns about half of the flock.

G L Powell 46 was named grand champion Shropshire female. Shown by Geoff Powell of Rome, G L Powell was also reserve champion in the junior show.

Powell, 15, has been showing in 4-H and open classes since 1986.

Werner and his parents, Judy and Roy Waggoner Jr., operate Waggoner Hampshires, a 380-acre Hampshire farm near Blue Grass, Va.

In his second appearance at KILE, Bryan took the title in Hampshire competition by exhibiting "Hulk," a fall ram lamb that also captured ribbons at the West Virginia State Fair and the Maryland State Fair.

KILE Sheep

When he is not showing sheep, he likes sports, especially basketball.

A sixth grader from North Annville Elementary School, 11-year-old Laura Martin captured the grand champion ribbon during Corriedale sheep contest.

Martin, the daughter of Aaron and LuAnn Martin, who operate Martins Corriedales near Bellegrove, made her first appearance at KILE.

Laura took the title with her yearling ewe, "Sheeba," an animal that also captured ribbons at the 4-H Fair in Lebanon and earlier this year at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show. Laura has been showing sheep since she was 9 years old.

Laura is a member of 4-H, serving as secretary of the Lebanon County 4-H Sheep Club. She is also active at Steelstown EC Church and in Troop 17 of the Girl Scouts in Annville. At North Annville Elementary she plays the French horn in the school band.

Billy George Leib, an 11-year-old from Mechanicsburg, exhibited the champion Rambouillet ram, champion ewe and reserve champion ewe. In fact, he took first place in every class he entered during the show.

His champion ram, a yearling named "BG Leib 146," was also named reserve champion at the Big E in New England last month. Billy George's champion ewe, "BG Leib 180," was a spring ewe lamb and the reserve champion ewe, "BG Leib 159," is a fall ewe lamb.

For the second straight year, he was named premier breeder and premier exhibitor of the Rambouillet Show. He exhibited all four champions here last year (champion and reserve champion rams and ewes).

Now a sixth grader at Cumberland Valley Middle School West, Billy George is a member of the Conodoguinet Sheep Club in Cumberland County. He also plays soccer in the Monroe Township Soccer Association.

His parents, Suzie and Bob, own and operate Shepherd's Crook. They have about 30 Rambouillet brood ewes. It is a family business, although most of the sheep are owned by Billy.

He has enjoyed a lot of success at the Farm Show Complex since he first exhibited as a toddler. He showed the champion ewe, reserve champion ewe and reserve champion ram at the State Farm Show.

During the three consecutive years that a supreme champion has been named for Wool Breed Sheep at the Farm Show, the distinction — and the money — has gone to Billy George.

He has a den that is filled with all the plaques and ribbons he won during his short career. Most of his prize money goes to a college fund, and some goes toward replacement animals or other special interests.

Not only did local youth fair well at KILE. A railroad construction contractor from Kutztown, who is also a veteran sheep exhibitor, showed the grand champion and reserve champion Shropshire

W.E. Yoder, who operates W.E. Yoder Inc., a railroad construction business also operates Wey Shropshires, a 50-acre sheep and horse farm in Rockland Township, Berks County. Wey Shropshires was also named premier breeder.

Yoder has been exhibiting his sheep in livestock judging events for more than a decade. He is a familiar face at KILE and at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

Yoder's grand champion, "WS-9218" was also named grand champion at the Big E, a livestock exposition held September in Springfield, Mass.

A veteran livestock show exhibitor from Windsor Township showed the Grand Champion Cheviot ewe.

John Eaton, who operates Triple J Acres farm near Windsor, won the blue ribbon with his yearling ewe, "Maple Crest 9184."

Eaton has been an exhibitor at KILE and the Pennsylvania State Farm Show for nearly a decade. He began showing sheep when his son, John Jr., became active in 4-H.

Hyline Farm of Lakewood, N.J., exhibited the grand champion Columbia ram and ewe.

Shown by Mary Ann Johnson of Hyline Farm, Johnson 90-10 was awarded grand champion ram and Johnson 91-23 was grand champion ewe.

Johnson and her husband, Richard, who have been breeding sheep since 1979, have been exhibiting at KILE since 1983. They have been premier breeders of Columbia Sheep at KILE since 1988.

An 11-year old fifth grader from Frankford Elementary School exhibited the reserve grand champion Montadale sheep.

Zachary Reed, son of Tim Hocker and Donna Reed Hocker represented Sleepy Hollow Farm, his family farm in Upper Frankford Township, Cumberland County.

Zachary also exhibited his ram, "Basher," at the Perry County Fair, the Shippensburg Community Fair and the 4-H Roundup. Basher was named supreme grand champion at the Perry County Fair.

This was Reed's second competition at KILE. In addition to showing sheep, Reed is active in sports, and has played Little League Baseball and midget football.

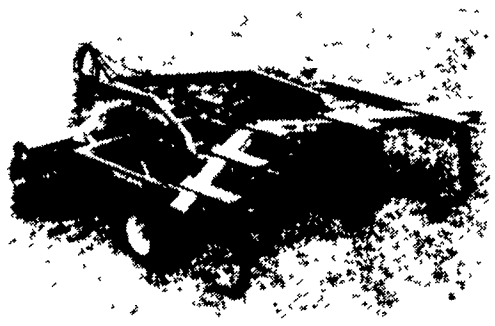
NEW AT BINKLEY & HURST BROS. FROM SUNFLOWER:

MODEL 4010/4110 SUNFLOWER®

COULTER RIPPER



Conservation Tillage Equipment Built SUNFLOWER Tough!

Sunflower's Coulter Ripper is for today's conservation minded farmer demanding deep tillage with minimal residue disturbance. These durable machines feature adjustable front mounted coulters on 7½" centers. The coulter blades have an added advantage of slicing hard ground to keep clod size to a minimum. The V-bar ripper design gives added trash clearance and pulls smoother than straight-bar rippers. These coulter rippers are built Sunflower tough and no ballast is added to the frame increasing the structural strength. Check out Sunflower's latest edition to its growing family of quality tillage equipment at a farm show or dealer near you.

Adjustable Coulter Gangs: The 4010/4110 both feature adjustable coulter gangs that can be raised completely in clean ground. Ratchet Jack Adjustment is standard equipment. Optional Hydraulic Gang Adjustment makes on the go changes or raising the coulters completely out of the way an easy task from the tractor seat.

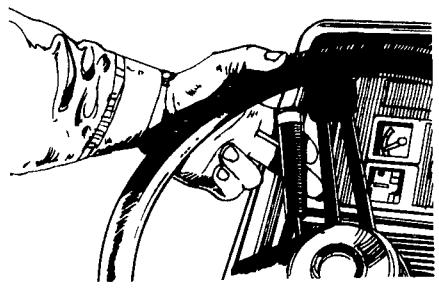
And Would You Believe The Competition Has Tried To Copy The Case IH Maxxum & Magnum Tractor Lines.... But OOPS! They Didn't Make It! This Proves That Case IH Is Truly The Tractor Industry Leader!

① We Still Have Transmissions Made Out Of Real Iron - NOT Aluminum.

② Our Maxxum Tractor Line Weighs Almost 1 Ton More Than Most Competitive Brands In The Same HP Class.

③ Case IH Maxxum Tractors Are Still The Only Tractor Made With A True Shuttle Shift That Is Operated By Your Left Hand Which Also Operates Your Steering. This Leaves You Right Hand Free To Operate Loader Controls, Aux. Hydraulics & Other Operating Functions.

THE MAXXUM® SHUTTLE SHIFT: IT'S NEVER BEEN EASIER TO MAKE ALL THE RIGHT MOVES.



While it may be tough to choose between the four new Case International 5200 Series MAXXUM tractors now available, one thing is certain No matter which model you select, the industry's top shuttle-shift system comes standard ■ And that means high-volume, high-speed loader work has never been easier With the flip of a fingertip, your MAXXUM shuttles quickly and decisively from forward to reverse, or vice versa, without clutching ■ The MAXXUM shuttle-shift is active between the first 12 forward speeds and the corresponding 12 reverse speeds, allowing shuttle shifts at forward speeds of more than eight mph and reverse speeds of more than 10 mph ■ "Shuttle-shift" a new 5200 Series MAXXUM tractor yourself Coming or going, there's never been anything like it ④ Case IH Tractors Feature American Styling, NOT Italian Like Competition Has Compromised To.

Axial-Flow Combines

SIMPLY MORE PRODUCTIVE IN THE FIELD

Over the past 14 years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER: Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every combine Hoober sells is started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hoober's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hoober's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pick-ups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hoober's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

WE REPAIR COMBINE TABLE AUGERS

With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-9% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.

Make your concentrate work harder.

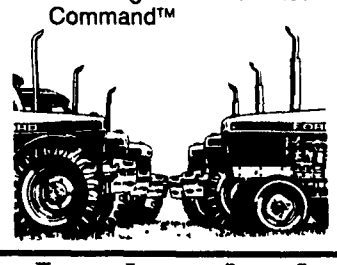
The new standard in 66 to 106 hp!

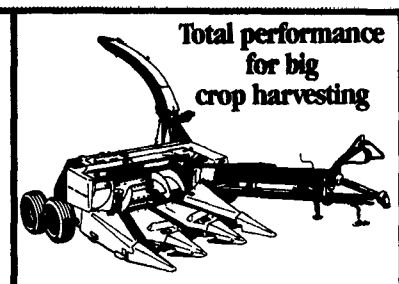
- New transmission choices, including the 16x16 Pulse Command™



Seeing is believing

Every minute you can save at the blower means more loads per day and more overall productivity. Let us demonstrate the New Holland Model 40 forage blower and we believe you'll agree you can increase your silage productivity.
The Model 40, with 20 percent greater tip speed than previous models, center fills silos over 80 feet high. The Whirl-A-Feed® table spins the crop into the blower housing at high speed, making more efficient use of your tractor's horsepower.
See us soon for a demonstration of the Model 40.

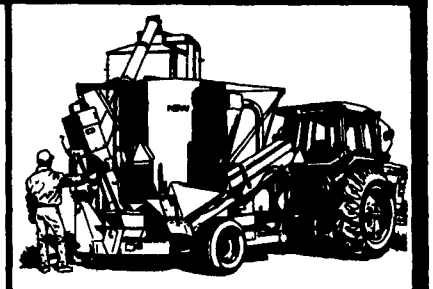
Total performance for big crop harvesting



You get total performance when you harvest your crops with a Model 900 forage harvester. Total performance begins at the cutterhead. The 12 knives of the 21-inch cutterhead give you uniformly cut, high-quality forage. Other features on the "900" include:

- Optional Metalert® II electronic metal detector—protects cutterhead and your valuable animals
- Electromagnetic clutches—give instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Easy-adjust shearbar—makes adjustment fast and precise

Stop in soon and see the Model 900.



First in durability

Surveys show owners rate New Holland grinder-mixers as the most durable. That's because Ford New Holland builds them right and backs them with quality parts and service. The Model 358 has a 125-bushel tank that's specially designed to eliminate bridging. An optional electronic scale assures accurate control of rations. Stop in and see the durable Model 358 grinder-mixer.

Load...unload faster and easier

When you're working the big loads you need the Super Boom advantage — extra reach. With more forward dump reach you can center load your largest spreader from one side so you get an even load. The result: faster loading, fuller loads and easier unloading.
With level bucket lift you load more and lift higher... with less spillback. And, with a longer wheelbase there's more stability and safety. So, why get stuck with anything else?
Find out just how good a skid-steer loader can be.

We have a spreader for any farm

Ford New Holland offers six quality spreaders to match any farming operation. All New Holland spreaders clean out fast to make quick work of dirty jobs.

- Corrosion-resistant steels are used throughout for tough, long-lasting construction.
- Plus adding optional slurry sides on the Models 145, 155 and 185 increases capacity up to 25% at a fraction of the cost.

'TIS THE SEASON!

Yes - The Harvest Season Is Here!
Store your good corn crop in a POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILO.

Units available for "High-Moisture" shelled corn or "Ground Ear" corn. Bottom-Unloading or Top-Unloading. Consider the Many Advantages of Concrete! 6" thick concrete walls to keep feed cooler because concrete reflects the sun's rays, and has 25 times more insulating power than steel. The concrete silo has a much lower maintenance requirement because there are not thousands of bolts to rust and work loose and no seams to reseal. The poured concrete silo is heavily reinforced to give you a very strong structure.

Unload from the bottom with a simple auger for high-moisture shelled corn, (least expensive); Laidig 43 for shelled corn or cob corn, or Flying Dutchman for grains or Forages.

12'x80' pictured: High-moisture shelled corn capacity of 7,000 bu. Built on your foundation for less than $25,000. with auger installed.
